In Hustling Chicago $100,000,000 a Year Lindbergh's Life No Arsenic, Please, F. R.

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1929, King Features Synd., Inc.

CHICAGO, FEB. 13—This big city is enjoying zero weather, but Chicago men do not know it. Walking so fast, on business, they do not notice cold or heat.

Merchants in other cities will like to know that James Simpson, owner of Marshall Field and Company, is doing more than one hundred millions a year in his retail store alone.

Also, he is building four branches of Marshall Field in different sections of Chicago. New York merchants, patiently waiting for Sears-Roebuck and Montgomery Ward to put branches in all New York's boroughs, please take notice.

Mr. Simpson is at work on a building north of the Chicago river worth coming 500 miles to see. It will have four million feet of floor space, biggest building in the world, with railroads inside the building, docks opening to the Great Lakes alongside the building, and wholesale businesses of all kinds gathered under one roof.

Adam Gimbel of the big mercantile family is in Chicago opening on Michigan ave. a branch of Saks Fifth ave. Good idea, much money is in Chicago. But why not open other branches in Brooklyn, Queens, the Bronx and Westchester?

The mere statement that Col. Lindbergh is late in arriving at destination alarms the nation. That no word had been received from him at 5 p. m., Eastern time yesterday, and that his radio was not working meant nothing serious in all probability.

But Lindbergh's life, which he holds so lightly, is a precious possession of the American people. They will be truly grateful to Herbert Hoover if he will find work to keep Lindbergh on the ground at least half the time.

If a father, to cure his children of overeating put arsenic in their food, you would say: "Something wrong with that father."

When a paternal Federal reserve board, mistaking itself for the national government, in cure what it considers over speculation ruins thousands of investors by forcing usurious interest rates, you say: "Something wrong with that Federal Reserve board."

The board is unnecessarily excited about four or five billion dollars of brokers' loans.

Learned financiers should realize that there is money in this country outside of banks' control.

Mr. Ecker, vice-president of the Metropolitan Life Company, has shown that the income of American wage earners is sixty billions of dollars a year. And they spend fifteen billions less than they earn.

Those fifteen billions are three times the total of brokers' loans. A nation that has every year fifteen billions of spending money might borrow a third of his excess annual wealth for investment or even for speculation, without making criminal usury necessary.

Lady De Bathe died yesterday at Monte Carlo, in her 77th year. As Mrs. Langtry, the Jersey Lily, she was known wherever English is spoken. Her reputation was due largely to her marvelous complexion, pink and white, NATURAL colors. Such complexions have gone out. Even little girls are daubed and plastered.

Thomas A. Edison on his 82d birthday said, among other things: "We do not know one millionth of one per cent of anything. We do not understand electricity, light, sound. We know nothing of these forces or their future effect."

Edison is as modest as Socrates, who, when called "Wisest of the Greeks," said he supposed they called him that because he knew at least that he knew nothing.

Things are not quite as bad as they seem to Mr. Edison. We don't know what electricity is, but we do know how to use it.

We know that we do not live, as men once thought they lived, with heaven and a threatening God above us, hell and an eager devil below. We know that we are sailing, with our sun, through one universe, part of a cosmos that includes millions of other universes.

We already CAN look out into space TO a distance of about a million light years. And the NEW 200-inch telescope now building is expected to extend man's vision as far as a billon light years. The distance that light can travel in a billion years, going 186,000 miles a second, is quite a distance.

A race that can weigh the earth and the sun, unite the Atlantic and Pacific oceans, lift steel rails with the mysterious power of the magnet, and produce such a man as Thomas A. Edison, IS not to be despised.

CIVIL SERVICE BOARD PROBES FRAUD CHARGE IN 679 POLICE EXAMS

Questions in the last civil service examination, taken by 679 Boston patrolmen seeking promotion to the rank of sergeant, were sold prior to the test, according to a report being investigated today by the Civil Service Commission.

Commissioner Elliot H. Goodwin admitted today he had begun a probe of the examination which was held January 19 in the Girls' High School building, West Newton st., South End.

In the nearly four weeks that have elapsed since the test, a number of policemen have expressed dissatisfaction over the questions, the majority of which, they have declared, had nothing to do with police work.

In admitting that he was conducting an investigation of the examination, Commissioner Goodwin said that it would take in his own office, was that, of course, is the source."

Many reports have been made to him relative to the examination in question, the commissioner admitted, and he has received several anonymous letters declaring that

'SUBWAY SLASHER' CUTS CLOTHES OF 7TH VICTIM

The "subway slasher" cut the clothing of his seventh victim today somewhere between Thompson sq., Charlestown, and the Friend st. station of the Washington st. tunnel.

Miss Adelaide Getchell, 20, of High st., Charlestown, was the victim. Miss Getchell told police that several times on her ride in town she felt a tug at her coat and dress. A youth of about 21 was standing beside her. At Friend st. she felt a heavy tug. As she left the train she discovered that her clothes had been cut.

TUFTS STUDENTS, IN FIRE, RESCUED ON ROOF

Two lives of 24 students of Tufts Dental School were imperilled early today as flames swept through the Alpha Omega fraternity house at 919 Beacon st., sending the students scurrying over rooflops and down firemen's ladders to safety.

The building, a four-story brick structure, adjoins the former Sebey Hospital, scene of a fatal fire four years ago.

Twelve students, their escape from the dormitories cut off by flames and blinding smoke, clung to the coping and from windows on the fourth story of the building until firemen arrived and assisted them to safety over ladders.

Two alarms were sounded and the flames, believed to have been

COOLIDGE REFUSES JOB; NOT SEEKING POSITION

Washington, Feb. 13 (INS)—President Coolidge was "offered a job" today after March 4 by one of his callers.

Ex-Senator Wm. M. Caldwell of New York discussed with Mr. Coolidge the possibility of his becoming identified with a New York financial institution after his retirement, but the President informed him, it was said, that he was "not looking for a job."

Calder told newspapermen at the White House that he (Calder) was "willing to bet ten to five" that Henry L. Stimson and Nathan L. Miller, both of New York, would be in the Hoover cabinet.

Stimson is to become Secretary of State, while Miller has been mentioned for the attorney-generalship.

HUB MAN IS PRISONER ON SHIP

Missing since Monday night, Joseph E. Dwyer, 23, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph J. Dwyer of Hancock st., Dorchester, was "shanghaied" and is held prisoner aboard a rum-running tug, according to a message received by his mother today.

The message, scrawled on a piece of yellow paper, stated that young Dwyer was on the tug Raffle, he believed in New York harbor, and that the craft was scheduled to sail tonight.

He accused a man with whom he

INSURANCE FLAYED

"The present compulsory insurance law is unjust, unfair and I believe, unconstitutional, so far as the zoning feature is concerned," Senator Conde J. Brodbine of Revere told the joint legislative committee on insurance at the State House today.

Senator Brodbine was one of a large number who appeared in opposition to the zoning system and calling for uniform rates throughout the State.

Because of the great interest manifested in the hearing, bringing out a big throng, it was held in the Gardner Auditorium.

Referring to the unjust, unfair and possibly unconstitutional features of the zoning system, Senator Brodbine said:

"This wrong should be righted. You should thrash this out so that rates may be equitable. This law ought to be amended in some way.

Letters Pour in on Temperance Plan

ARROWS of wrath, shafts of bitter ridicule aimed at the liquor laws; words of patriots aroused over what they consider the outraging of personal rights and liberties by the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead Act, fill page after page of the many hundreds of letters reaching the office of the Boston Evening American, every day, in the course of the present $25,000 Hearst Temperance Contest.

Nationwide interest has been aroused by this, the most serious attempt to find a means of doing away with the present condition of doubtful temperance and unquestioned abuse of liquor resulting from post-war liquor legislation.

At the present stage of the contest, it can be stated with conviction that, out of the many plans submitted, at least one will have those qualities of simplicity, common sense, moderation and general

FLYING ACE SILENT ON ROMANCE AS HE LANDS HOME AFTER LONG HOP

Miami, Fla., Feb. 13—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh landed his amphibian plane at the local airport at 9:46 a. m. today from Havana, completing a round trip voyage to Panama as the first pilot of the newly inaugurated Central America air mail of Pan-American Airways, Inc.

His was welcomed home by cheering crowds.

The noted airman left Havana at 7:26 a. m. and skirted the lower end of the peninsula some distance away from Key West for a more direct route. Although he encountered a five-mile head wind on the last leg of his flight and the skies here were overcast when he arrived, the colonel said he had good weather most of the journey.

Within an hour after returning here Lindy hopped off again in his plane to aid in the search then being made for R. T. Dunten and Naval Lieut. Steven Callaway, missing in a Boston-owned amphibian plane while flying over the Gulf of Mexico.

News that the missing airmen had been rescued off Key West came soon after Lindy had zoomed away to help locate them.

The missing plane is owned by Richard F. Hoyt of Boston and

BRAVES AND BRUSSE TO FACE CHARGE IN COURT

Complaints charging violation of the Corrupt Practice Act against Orrie Brusse, secretary-treasurer of the Outdoor Recreation League, and the Boston National League baseball club were granted today in municipal court.

The complaints were granted on application of Gerald J. Callahan, assistant attorney-general, who declared that his office has in hand several statements bearing on the alleged violation.

Judge Charles T. Carr issued the complaints, returnable on Feb. 20.

In an argument before the court, the assistant attorney-general caused a surprise today by declaring that counsel for the defense did not dispute alleged facts put forth by the State.

Of the five individuals removed from the bureau, however, the commission notes "with regret" that four have been retained on the city payroll in other "unnecessary positions."

The five employes eliminated from the bureau are listed as follows: Lawrence J. Conley, salary $2000; George A. Riley, $2000; Walter M. Longee, $2000; Edward W. Sawyer, $2000; Irving Shaler, $2000. All were clerks.

LINDY LANDS IN MIAMI AFTER COMPLETING HISTORIC FLIGHT

New York, a capitalist and air enthusiast. Hoyt had used the plane on a pleasure tour along the Florida and Cuban coasts.

As in Havana Lindy, on reaching the Miami air field, refused to comment on his engagement to Miss Anne Spencer Morrow, daughter of the U. S. ambassador to Mexico.

"Have you any other questions to ask?" was all he said when greeted by reporters eager to question him about the romance.

On hopping off from Havana this morning Lindy was cheered by a crowd gathered at the flying field. Interest in the flier had been greatly increased by public announcement of his engagement to Anne Morrow.

The flying colonel had spent the night in Havana after he had arrived at 7:49 o'clock last night. Lindbergh became overcue after hopping off from Belize, British Honduras, for Havana, and his delay in reaching here resulted from his decision to make an unchartered stop. He landed at Cozumel, a little island off the southern Mexican coast for fuel.

Lindbergh was surprised to find that his delay in reaching Havana had caused some excitement. He explained that he had flown up the Yucatan coast, after leaving British Honduras, to make a study of possible landing places in the future. The coast line will be mapped for future use in event mail and passenger planes leave their course and are seeking a safe place to land.

When he reached the air field Lindbergh turned a deaf ear to all queries about his romance with Miss Morrow. When asked the date of their marriage he retorted: "I will confine all my remarks to aviation."

When his attention was called to the formal announcement of the engagement given out by Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow in Mexico City, Lindbergh smiled, and remarked:

"You know all about it. There is nothing for me to add to what you already know."

However, before hopping off Lindbergh did say:

"I plan to do some more flying shortly after I reach the United States. Beyond that my plans are vague. I am going to New York from Miami and expect to fly a plane over the transcontinental air line route from New York to the West. But there are details to be worked out.

"I may hop off at Miami for New York tomorrow. I expect to spend tonight at Miami."

Mexico City, Feb. 13—All Mexico City, governmental diplomatic and social, poured its congratulations today upon Miss Anne Spencer Morrow, most envied girl in all the world, in having the role of making the great "Lone Eagle" of the air a real "We."

For Miss Morrow, some time in next May or June—possibly on the anniversary of the flying colonel's epochal flight over the Atlantic Ocean—will become Mrs. Charles Augustus Lindbergh, bride of one of the world's greatest figures.

The formal announcement of the engagement, made by U. S. Ambassador and Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow of the embassy here, has brought felicitations from thousands in Mexico, but brought a flood of messages by wireless and telegraph today.

It is easy to see, from the happy discussions here, that the plighting of the troth of the petite brunette daughter of the Ambassador to that other "Ambassador of Good Will" is an event of world interest.

Just where the wedding ceremony is to be performed is not announced as yet, nor have the young couple made their plans fully. The rites may take place here; that is the wish of every Mexican heart. But again, the ceremony may be in New York city, or possibly at Englewood, N. J.

Mexico City attends the Union church, which includes all Protestant denominations.

IS FLIER, TOO

Miss Morrow and Col. Lindbergh have not decided what denomination minister will perform the ceremony.

Anne has flown with her fiance several times in Mexico and New York. She was a passenger on flights over Mexico City 14 months ago when Lindbergh spent a fortnight here after his famous good will flight from Washington to Mexico City. She again flew with him here last November, when Lindy began one week of the long course of a hunting trip.

Her love of flying is one of the strongest bonds of interest which they have in common.

Bride-to-Be Silent on Plans for Wedding

But it will take place in May or June, and quietly probably on the day in May which will mark the second anniversary of "Lindy's" hop across the sea from New York to Paris.

The bride-to-be is as modest in her attitude today as is Col. Lindbergh. Just as he refuses to discuss the engagement, does she remain in the background. And the bride-to-be's father refused to add to the wording of the formal announcement.

Mexico looks upon it as a real love match, growing out of the mutual interest of Miss Anne and her fiance in aviation, and developing as 18 months or more as they saw more and more of one another.

Anne, like her father and family, is a member of the Presbyterian church. Ambassador Morrow is

PLAN TO CLOSE TAMWORTH ST. IS BLOCKED

The proposed closing of Tamworth st., running from Boylston to Lagrange sts., to permit the erection by Fox interests of a large building and theatre on the present Hotel Touraine and adjacent sites, was blocked today when an injunction was issued restraining the street commissioners from vot ing to discontinue the thoroughfare.

The action was taken by Judge Bishop in the equity motion division of Superior court on a bill in equity brought by Thomas F. MacDonald and other taxpayers. Asst. Corp. Counsel Joseph P. Lyons is to demur to the bill and a hearing on his demurrer will be held next Monday.

Meantime a large throng, including property owners, had gathered in the street commission's rooms in City Hall Annex to attend a hearing which was scheduled. As the commissioners had not received word of the injunction proceedings until late yesterday, it was too late for them to send out notice of the postponement of their own hearing.

Frederick D. Bonner for the plaintiffs, at the injunction hearing, told Judge Bishop that if the street commissioners were permitted to cease a vote discontinuing Tamworth st., it might cause a reversion of the land to the heirs of the grantors.

Under the deed the land was given to the city of Boston as a trust, and the proposed action by the street commissioners would be a violation of that agreement, it was argued.

Under an act of 1913, Bonner said, the street commissioners had no right to discontinue Tamworth st. All they had a right to do, he contended, was to make a recommendation to the City Council that possible convenience and necessity required the discontinuance of the street.

Henry V. Cunningham said the proposed discontinuance was not in the interest of the public but entirely for the benefit of private interests.

Calls United States a Nation in Uniform

London, Feb. 13 (AP)—Amalgamations of textile selling organizations in the United States have led to result in the nation dressed in a uniform, Sydney Illingworth, representing the dress goods manufacturers of the West Ridings of Yorkshire, said while giving evidence before the Board of Trade committee which is hearing an application of the textile manufacturers for a safeguarding duty.

Amalgamations in the United States, he said, had encountered difficulties because of the tendency to offer standardized products. Smaller units were catered to the desire for absolutely personal clothing had been successful in that country.

Alden was about to turn into Spring st. when he lost all feeling in his legs.

Byrd Sends for 20 Pounds of Garlic

Cedar Rapids, Ia., Feb. 13 (INS)—Bert Puckett, radio amateur, today talked to the Eleanor Bolling, the Byrd expedition supply ship which was en route to base in New Zealand to take on supplies.

Among the foodstuffs the ship said it would carry back to Byrd were twenty pounds of garlic, a ton of meat and great quantities of drugs.

caused by a carelessly discarded cigarette, kept them first to the top floor before they were checked. The loss was estimated at $15,000.

On the first floor of the building, occupied by dining and recreation rooms, a library of medical books valued at several thousand dollars went up smoke.

The three upper stories are occupied as sleeping rooms. On the second floor, Max Gershwin was aroused from his sleep by suffocating smoke. He awoke Bernard Grunfeld, who was sleeping nearby, and together they fought their way through the blinding smoke in the hallway to the upper stories, arousing their fellow-students.

Louis Levins, another student, was saved from a possible fatal fall by three companions, when he slipped off the coping in the rear of the fourth story as he was edging his way toward the roof of an adjoining building.

SAVED BY CHUMS

Levins, Joseph Rudnick, Harry Weinberg and Sam Braffman, who had been asleep in a fourth-floor dormitory, found escape through the hall blocked by flames, and crawled through the window. Levins' foot slipped on the metal covering of the coping, and but for the alertness of his three companions, he grasped him. He would have plunged to the yard below.

These students clung to the coping until ladders were thrown against the side of the building and firemen helped them to descend.

Other students negotiated the perilous passage along the coping to the roof of 313 Beacon st., occupied by Mrs. Ida Larrabee, and descended through the house to the street.

Mrs. Larrabee and his family were forced to don their clothing and flee to the street when the smoke filled the room of their home.

CARRIED TO STREET

Several students suffered from the heavy smoke, and a few were burned slightly as they fled through the hallway from the lower floors.

Eight students who were clinging to windows and the coping above the front of the building were carried to the street by firemen of Ladders 15 and 26.

The students rescued here were Morris Bacon, Bernard Grubber, Augustus Fisher, Ernest Sadolsky, Sidney Jacobson, Albert Hayden, Jack Erderoish and Leonard Burg.

MRS. HAHN SAYS DUVEEN HAD HUB SALE PLAN

New York, Feb. 13—Boston art circles were introduced into the case when Mrs. Andree Lardoux Hahn, owner of the disputed portrait, "La Belle Ferronniere," took the stand in the trial of her $500,000 action against Joseph Duveen, Sir Joseph Duveen, art dealer, because she said the picture was not painted by Leonardo Da Vinci.

Mrs. Hahn told the jury that her husband had offered the picture to the United States Brothers, a firm of which Sir Joseph is a member, but that he had wanted to sell it in Boston.

She was asked if she knew Colin Agnew, or "Count Saiz," of Boston, and she said she did, but that the picture had never been offered them with her sanction.

Levy asked Mrs. Hahn if any European art dealer had seen the picture since 1918.

She answered "No."

Mrs. Hahn said that she thought the picture had been cleaned since it came into her possession in 1919, but that, to her knowledge, no restoration work had been done on the painting.

Madame Hahn testified that the disputed picture was given her by her godmother, Madame D. E. Montrot of Paris, as a present on the occasion of her marriage to Dr. Harry Hahn of Kansas City in 1919.

Salem Walker Out to Cut Time to Gotham

Salem, Feb. 13 (AP)—Owen Eastman, who last year walked from this city to Vancouver, B. C., will make an attempt to walk to New York city from Salem in four days, he said today. The record for the 286-mile trip is held by Edward Payson Weston, who made the distance in six days.

INVESTIGATES TESTS FOR 679 PATROLMEN

the test questions were sold to candidates for promotion.

He said that there are such reports following every similar examination, but that these were stronger than normal, and strong enough to warrant investigation.

One report prompting the investigation was that the examination questions were sold for $500 a set by a sergeant recently promoted to that rank.

Other members of the department cited down the report on the ground that the sergeant in question finished his own examination, nearly two years ago, with a mark that placed him far down in the eligible list, whereas if he had had access to questions prior to the test he would have been able to win a ranking in the first three. However—that was two years ago, still other members of the department pointed out.

When asked if he had been notified of the shadow cast on the recent examination, Police Commissioner Herbert A. Wilson, expressed surprise today.

"It is the first I have heard of it," the commissioner said. "The matter of the examination is not in my hands, however. It was conducted by the Civil Service Commission. I had nothing to do with it.

"No one has notified me that there is any suspicion of wrong about the examination. The commissioners have their own examinations, their own rooms, their own questions and their own monitors.

"All I gave them were the names of policemen eligible to take the examination. That's where my duty ended. I don't know what went on in the examination room and there isn't any reason why I should. It is a State House matter entirely."

The commissioner of police declared, however, that he would take immediate action if it were proved that any police, individual or individuals sold examination questions.

ATTACKS AUTO INSURANCE

"It seems unfair for the Legislature to compel motorists to insure and then to penalize them because they live in a particular section of the State. If you are going to penalize motorists for accidents put it on their insurance policies.

"These rates now in effect are based on mere fiction. They are all wrong. At a previous hearing when the insurance commissioner was present it was admitted that his office did not have the facilities to make rates but was compelled to go to the insurance companies for information upon which to base them."

Several persons appeared in favor of the zoning system, including W. J. Constable of Massachusetts Automobile Rating & Accident Prevention Bureau, Russell Harmon of Worcester, John W. Downs, legislative counsel for the Insurance Federation of Massachusetts, John Dickinson of Massachusetts Farm Bureau Federation, W. H. Thibodeau, head of the A. L. A. and official of an insurance company, Rep. Charles R. Damon of Williamsburg and Frank A. Brainard of South Hadley.

Harmon, who is secretary of an automobile club in Worcester, said "an individual merit plan is the ideal plan but that is not practical at the present time and until it is the most practical thing is the zoning system."

CALLS FOR HELP

Joseph E. Dwyer of Dorchester has sent his mother a secret note saying he is held prisoner on a rum ship and asks her to notify police.

had some trouble a short time ago and asked his mother to notify the police, which was done.

"Dear Beck," the note read, using a pet name for his mother which no one but a member of the family would know, "don't worry about me.

"I am aboard a tugboat named Raffle, No. 117. The kid says we are in New York. ——— (the name of the man with whom he had trouble) is at the head of this. I think. Notify the police that the tugboat is sailing tonight. I don't know where I am. I'm in some harbor. The kid tells me it's New York."

The letter was enclosed in an envelope directed to Mrs. Dwyer in a hand not her son's. The police believe that "the kid" mentioned by Dwyer smuggled his message ashore, procured an envelope, addressed it and mailed it special delivery collect.

NOTE SMUGGLED OUT.

Police of Station 11, to whom the case was turned over, at once communicated with the New York authorities and a hunt was begun for the tug. It is understood the coast guard were also notified.

It is believed Dwyer was "shanghaied" Monday night on board the tug and taken to New York, preparatory to removing him, possibly to the Provinces.

Last Saturday Dwyer's small son was struck by a big sedan, the driver of which the Dorchester youth had words. He was told that the reports of the accident to the police he would be "fixed," but nevertheless the report was made, his mother said.

TRAPPED BY POSTCARD.

Dwyer is proprietor of the Marcella Battery Shop on Washington st., Roxbury, and according to his mother is much interested in batteries. Therefore when on Monday he received a postcard purporting to have been sent out by the National Battery Men's Association, and announcing a meeting for that night at a clubhouse on Atlantic ave., Dwyer made plans to attend.

Monday night he left home in his car for the meeting, but failed to return.

CHARGE LAX DISCIPLINE

Conley, the commission discloses, is the Harvard boxing instructor, who devoted part of his time to making contacts between the bureau and business concerns. He made deductions from his salary for time spent at Harvard, it was reported, but the commission considered that "with two masters" he could not serve the city's unemployed adequately.

The commission also declared that in the men's division of the bureau, while clerks attended to ordinary applicants, Mr. Sever, the man in charge, handled all the train she discovered that her a hospital job or had a letter from some influential person.

"The bureau keeps the list of the latter applicants, together with the names of their sponsors, and when the job is filled, the sponsor is notified," the report says. "It was interesting to read the names of many city councillors on this list."

The commission also reported that a stenographer, Miss Ryan, really ran the men's division of the bureau and discipline was lax, employes reporting at any time up to 11 o'clock. The quarters at 187A Blackstone st. were swept out only twice a week, the floors were littered with cigarettes and there were no electric lights, so that work had to cease at 4 o'clock.

EXPENSE IS SCORED

The commission also called attention to the different way of handling things at the State employment bureau, which placed 12,221 persons in 11 months, as compared with the city's 3613, and had a per capita cost of $2.58, against the city bureau's $6.21.

In the women's division, it was reported, one of the clerks, Dr. Irving Shalett, instead of being regularly at his work, was permitted to visit the City Hospital as an observer at clinics.

Mayor Nichols' reply to these criticisms was that the women's division had been moved to the same building as the men's; the latter had been rearranged for greater efficiency; the entire quarters thoroughly renovated and the five employes removed.

The Finance Commission withheld its report from publication until the mayor's reply was received, in accordance with an arrangement previously made regarding reports of this nature.

Payroll Statistic Bill Opposed

A bill to permit the commissioner of labor and industries to compile and payroll statistics on a monthly basis for the purpose of combating unemployment periods, brought forth divided opinions at a legislative hearing today from manufacturer's associations.

Rep. Shattuck argued that the measure would be a contribution to the program supported by President-elect Hoover and introduced at a gathering of governors at New Orleans.

In opposition it was contended that the bill would impose additional office burdens on the manufacturers who cannot afford more than one or two office employes.

Jardine Won't Sit in Hoover Cabinet

Washington, Feb. 13 (AP)—Secretary Jardine eliminated himself as a possible member of the Hoover cabinet in a formal statement today announcing that he had accepted a position as counsel for the federated fruit and vegetable growers.

2 DEAD IN MYSTERY CRASH

Salem, N. H., Feb. 13—Two men met death today when a coupe left the road, snapped off a telegraph pole and then dived into a ditch.

Bert E. Sullivan, 36, married, of Haverhill st., Andover, was instantly killed in the crash.

Joseph Eutzie, 24, single, of Booth rd., Methuen, died seven hours later at the Lawrence General Hospital from a fractured skull.

In the car were two women companion. Both were injured, but not seriously.

Mrs. Etta Hall, 35, of Pelham st., Methuen, and Mrs. Ruth Connors, 35, of Pelham ave., Methuen, walked two miles to their stocking feet after the crash and woke up John A. Spates of Canobie Lake rd., who drove them to Methuen.

WOMEN LOSE SHOES

There they were taken in charge by police who furnished them with a doctor and then sent them home.

Mrs. Hall suffered lacerations and shock. Mrs. Connors, however sustained multiple lacerations, several broken teeth and a back injury.

Both women lost their shoes in the crash.

According to the women, they met the men early that evening and went with them to a roadhouse in the Salem section.

The coupe was rolling back toward Methuen at a moderate rate of speed, they said, when it suddenly veered off the road.

HEARD CRASH

Daniel A. Cameron, manager of the Salem Electric Light Co., heard the crash from his office in the plant, a few hundred feet away. He telephoned Sheriff Chrystler of Salem, then notified Methuen and Lawrence police and then ran out to the scene.

Sullivan, who had been driving, was lying beside the road with his head and face crushed in. Eutzie was unconscious on the other side of the battered car. The women were nowhere to be seen, although Cameron had heard a woman's scream.

COURT ACTION AT BRAVES STARTED

"There is no dispute on the facts," he said, "but there is a question of law upon which the defendants' attorneys would like to be heard before you take action on my request for complaints.

Action against the baseball club and Treasurer O. J. Brusse of the Outdoor Baseball Association is the result of investigation by Attorney-General Joseph E. Warner, who found that only $30,000 of the $30,000 fund which the league expended in a campaign to obtain passage of the Sunday sports referendum last fall.

Warner declares the corrupt practices act was violated, that the Braves expended $30,000, as shown by their own checks, in violation of the law, and that there were inconsistencies in the certified report of contributions and expenditures which was filed with the secretary of state over Brusse's signature.

Asst. Atty.-Gen. George R. Lourie accompanied Callahan to the application session conducted today by Judge Carr. Callahan explained the investigation made by himself and the attorney-general in which various witnesses appeared voluntarily at Warner's invitation and were given many instances questioned in the presence of counsel.

Besides the point of law involved, the nature of which is not disclosed, there is also said to be some question as to the jurisdiction of the municipal court. But since the attorney-general can institute proceedings in any jurisdiction in the state, this is deemed a minor matter and easily adjustable.

Violation of the corrupt practices is a misdemanor, not a felony, and that is the reason, according to the prosecuting officials, the municipal court instead of the grand jury was resorted to.

The maximum penalty is a fine of $10,000 and imprisonment for six months. The jail sentence cannot be imposed in the case of a corporation. It is understood the latter will be dealt under section 7 of the law which prohobits contributions by a corporation to funds for campaign purposes.

Prince to Keep But One of His Mounts

London, Feb. 13 (INS)—The Prince of Wales, who has given up hunting and point-to-point racing, has decided to keep only one horse —"Just An Idea." This is the prince's oldest hunter. Although the prince has figured in many hunting accidents he has never been thrown from "Just An Idea" during the six years he has been riding the horse.

Happy Couple Met in Mexico City Year Ago

The young couple first met when Col. Lindbergh made his famous non-stop flight from Washington to Mexico City a little more than a year ago. Since that time, Col. Lindbergh has been the guest of the Morrow family in Mexico City and at their country home at Cuernavaca.

Miss Morrow is 22, a brunette, and a favorite in the diplomatic social circles here. She won two prizes for proficiency in scholarship at Smith College, from which she was graduated last year.

The Mexican capital suspected that a romance was in the offing for the colonel, who has been the idol of feminine hearts since he flew to Paris, but the wedding rumors to that effect had been printed in local papers last November, but not since.

When Lindbergh took off from Valbuena Field here last November for the United States, he gave the Morrow have a home.

Lindy's Cupid Drives Car That Breaks for Love

New York, Feb. 13 (INS)—Those who believe that fate plays a hand in the poker game of life can see added evidence of its handiwork in the forthcoming marriage of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and Miss Anne Morrow.

It was probably many months after Lindbergh and Miss Morrow met that the youthful flier broached the question of matrimony, friends here say.

They met at the Morrow residence in Mexico City after the "Lone Eagle" made his triumphant good-will flight from Washington.

They met several times after that, but it was in Englewood, N. J., where the Morrows have their suburban home, that Lindy did his wooing.

A broken down automobile was the instrument through which fate wove its romance. One night the flyer happened to be driving through Englewood with no thought of calling on the Morrows. His automobile broke down and fate with a beckoning hand led his footsteps to the ambassador's mansion.

Last winter the same car led him to Englewood once more. Again fate was on the job. The automobile broke down a considerable distance outside the Morrow home and Lindy hiked for three hours through a snowstorm before he reached its sheltering warmth.

After that Lindbergh went often to the Morrow home. One night—not so long ago—he left there to drive back to New York with a promise locked tight in his heart.

Any supposition that Lindbergh wooed and won Miss Morrow in whirlwind fashion is ill-founded, friends say.

G. C. Flynt, Noted Quarryman, Dies

Monson, Feb. 13 (AP)—George Converse Flynt, 66, leading citizen of this town and one of the best known quarrymen of the east, died today. At the age of 16 he entered the employ of the W. M. Flynt Granite Co., operated by his father, and, becoming treasurer, remained with it until 1923. With his brother, Lyman C. Flynt, he became one of the best known antique dealers in the country.

FOREIGN 'DOPE' FLOW INTO U. S. PROTESTED

DEMANDS EUROPEANS BE WARNED

By KENNETH CLARK

Washington, Feb. 13—Demand that the State Department immediately file protests with Holland, France, Germany and Switzerland over the swamping of America with narcotic drugs manufactured in those countries was made by Representative Fish (R) of New York.

Fish's request was based upon a letter sent him earlier in the day by Secretary of State Kellogg. In it was a report of the League of Nations advisory committee on traffic in opium and other dangerous drugs, naming factories in the four countries which are allegedly supplying the drugs to the illicit trade.

The report, transmitted to the State Department by the American unofficial representative at the advisory committee's twelfth session, declared:

"In the course of the discussion on the reports on seizures, especially those submitted by the Netherlands Government and the United States Government, the committee learned that large quantities of drugs manufactured or sold by four firms mentioned below had been met with in the illicit traffic: 'Naarden' Chemical Works at Bussum, Netherlands; Sandoz-Chemical Basle, Switzerland; C. H. Boehringer and Son, Hamburg, Germany, and the Societe Industrielle De Chimieorganique, St. Genevieve, France.

IMMEDIATE ACTION

"I will immediately take up the matter with Secretary Kellogg and insist that the State Department communicate with the four countries mentioned in which factories are conclusively violating the Hague convention to restrict the narcotic traffic," said Fish.

"These countries are all parties to The Hague agreement of 1912 and as a matter of self protection against the swamping of illicit drugs in the United States, it is the duty of the State Department not only to complain but to insist upon the fullest co-operation of these foreign governments to enforce the terms of the Hague convention and thereby prevent the overproduction of drugs and their sale and shipment for illicit use in the United States."

WOULD AID DRIVE

The problem of smashing the international dope smuggling rings, whose operations have increased three-fold in the last year, is the most perplexing one facing federal narcotic officers, according to L. G. Nuti, chief of the division. He estimated that 98 per cent of the illicit drugs sold to addicts in America was smuggled from abroad.

If foreign governments would live up to their agreements, Fish said, a great step forward would be made in the fight to rid the country of the dope menace.

SAVES TOT, HIT BY CAR, DYING

After saving a child from the path of a truck, Mrs. C. H. Watson, 71-year-old Belmont physician, was critically injured today on Massachusetts ave., in front of Cambridge City Hall.

She was taken to Cambridge city hospital with severe scalp wounds, multiple cuts and bruises and a possible fracture of the skull.

Mrs. Watson saw the child walking into the path of a delivery truck, which police say was driven by Bernard Nangle of Washington pl., Peabody.

She ran into the street, snatched the child out of danger, but in doing so fell, and was herself run down. Volunteers extricated her from under the truck.

The injured woman's home is in Clark st., Belmont. The child disappeared from the scene immediately after the accident.

Rowley and Breck for Anti-Trap Bill

Legislation to abolish steel traps in hunting wild animals was urged by Dr. Francis H. Rowley of the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, and by Dr. Edward Breck of Washington, president of the Anti-Steel Trap League of America, at a hearing today in the State House.

Saying he was not "a long-haired sob sister," Dr. Breck remarked he had "probably killed more moose than any other white man not living constantly in the woods," but had reformed.

He added that the fur industry has offered a $10,000 prize for a humane trap and he predicted fur-farming would develop in Massachusetts on a large scale if the bill becomes law.

U. S. AGENT ILL IN PARIS

WILL ATTEND REPARATIONS PARLEY

Mr. and Mrs. Parker Gilbert as they appeared on their return to Paris from the United States. He is United States agent at the reparations conference and is ill with influenza, but convalescing. (International Newsreel photo.)

GILBERT WILL BE HEARD ON REPARATIONS

Paris, Feb. 13 (AP)—The third session of the experts' committee on reparations got under way at eleven o'clock this morning with the German delegates apparently still occupying the center of the stage.

Dr. Hjalmar Schacht took the floor at the start and continued his explanation of the situation in Germany. He dwelt on the fact that there was not so much difference between his figures and those of others—apparently referring to the recent report of S. Parker Gilbert, agent-general for reparations —as there was in the conclusions drawn from them.

GILBERT ILL WITH FLU

Mr. Gilbert, who is still shed after an attack of influenza, is recovering and is expected to be heard by the committee.

Dr. Schacht has taken the position Germany cannot maintain the payment schedules laid out under the Dawes plan.

Dr. Schacht's fellow experts seemed confused by his masses of figures, poured fourth hourly, respecting the budgets and categories of resources of Germany, its exports and imports and the inferences concerning the future.

They expected to examine the statistics in manuscript, but there appeared to be no disposition on the part of the French, or any other delegates to controvert Dr. Schacht's figures by independent calculations of their own.

CITE GILBERT'S REPORT.

Instead, they placed against them Mr. Gilbert's report of 197 pages which is based largely on an accumulation of statistics.

Sir Josiah Stamp, one of the British delegates, must go to London for a directors' meeting, so it is impossible for the committee to meet on Friday and Saturday.

Today Chairman Owen D. Young read to the committee the following reply from Vice-President Dawes to the committee's message of greeting:

"I gratefully acknowledge the message from the committee experts. The world is confident of their high purpose and competency and awaits hopefully consummation of their great work so vital to its welfare."

U. S. Altitude Fliers Are Dazzled by Ice Crystal Mirage

Dayton, O., Feb. 13 (AP)—Two army fliers in an old army plane reached an unofficial altitude of 39,000 feet from Wright field and brought down with them an account of a condition above the clouds which meteorologists long have suspected but never have been able to prove.

The fliers, Lieut. Johnson and Capt. A. W. Stevens, pilot and photographer, were forced down by depleted fuel at Norton Field, Columbus, O.

The two pilots blamed their failure to establish a record for a two-man plane on another phenomenon of the air excessive visibility.

"The ordinary horizon line when flying is between seven and eight thousand feet," they explained. "After we got above the clouds of ice we couldn't see the ground and the horizon line above must have been at least 50,000 feet—and we didn't know where we were."

76 BELOW ZERO.

After they had reached the pinnacle of their flight, Johnson and Stevens were flying in a temperature of 76 degrees below zero. They looked below and saw what appeared to be billows of ice crystals, hung in midair and resembling the formations of a cave.

The sun added the spectacle as a dazzling sight, with the light rays broken by the fragile crystals into all the colors of the spectrum. In order to verify this seeming mirage of the heavens they dipped again and again into the crystals, and Lieut. Johnson, to make more certain, removed his glove and stuck his bare hand from the cockpit. It was pierced as though by a thousand needles. Not satisfied, Capt. Stevens exposed part of his face, and today he bore a huge ice blister on one cheek as a souvenir.

Capt. Stevens made several pictures on his flight, but the results are in doubt. Exhaust from the engine fouled the lens several times and a thick blanket of snow which covered the territory over which they flew made his photographs of little value in studying the earth from the great height.

PLAN NEW FLIGHT.

The aviators plan another flight within a short time, when they expect to establish a record. Two important changes in their plane and their equipment will be made first. Exhaust pipes from the engine will be extended along the fuselage to carry the fumes beyond the cockpits, for one thing, and the other improvement is development of electrically heated goggles which served until the lowest temperature was reached, when they became foggy.

The pilots took off at 2:26 p. m. yesterday from Wright Field. They landed late in the afternoon at Columbus, fearing to attempt a return to Dayton because of possible injury to the plane by a forced landing.

URGE FEES FOR JURY TRIALS

Statistics and arguments in favor of establishing a fee for claim of trial by jury in civil suits, and also for larger Superior Court entry fees, were issued today by the Massachusetts Bar Association as the legislative joint judiciary committee began hearings on two bills providing for these changes.

The association frowns on several other proposed methods of reducing congestion in the courts, which are embodied in bills now pending, including increase in the number of judges and the appointment of a commission to adjust motor vehicle cases.

"Equity cases and jury-waived law cases show no increase, but jury cases show a startling increase in the last five years," the association report says of the signature of its assistant secretary, Dunbar F. Carpenter.

"Such increase is largely, if not wholly, due to motor tort cases, and with the present number of judges and present methods of trial no relief is in sight.

Statistics covering 3341 jury and jury-waived trials show recoveries by plaintiffs in about 58 per cent., and of these recoveries 48 per cent were for sums under $501, and 66 per cent were under $1001.

"One is appalled at the economic waste—the heavy financial burden falling upon the Commonwealth, the litigants and their counsel.

"The Judicial Council estimates the total expense per day of a jury trial at $500. While it is not so stated, it appears from the context that this $500 is the expense to the Commonwealth alone. The cost, direct and indirect, to the litigants can hardly be less than $200 a day for each trial. Our figures show a jury trial averages one and a quarter days, on which basis each trial costs the taxpayers $625.

"Why allow a litigant a choice without any difference in expense to him, between a mode of trial costing the Commonwealth not over $50 a day (jury-waived cases) and one costing $500 a day? And if a litigant insists upon calling on his neighbors (as jurors) to their financial detriment, to hear his privateuses, is it unfair that he, too, should make some financial sacrifice?"

Kill Immigration Act Move

Washington, Feb. 13 (AP)—The Nye resolution proposing another postponement of the effective date of the national origins provision of the immigration act was rejected by the Senate Immigration committee.

POOR DYING BY SCORES OF COLD

Vienna, Feb. 13 (AP)—Gypsies, peasants dwelling in thatched huts and other persons with inadequate shelter against the Arctic frigidity of the cold snap that has held Central Europe and the Balkans in its grip for days, are perishing in groups of from six to 34 each.

Reports today from various sections of the afflicted district told of 85 gypsies frozen to death in their tents, families of 12 Ledjanin peasants perishing in unheated huts and of a band of 34 gypsies who succumbed near Innsbruck, Austria.

The gypsies were especially hard hit. A band of 21 died near Ljubljana in the Slovenian district of Jugoslavia, when their tents were swept away by a gale that accompanied a heavy snowstorm. Thirty other gypsies went to sleep in tents at Uzhorod, Czechoslovakia, and never awakened. At Janow, near the Austrian-Polish frontier, 34 gypsies were frozen to death in rickety caravans.

At Buzeu, Rumania, 12 peasants succumbed to the cold and another family of 10 were found frozen to death in a thatched hut at Campini, Rumania. In famine-stricken Kishinev 14 persons perished of cold.

Other parts of Rumania reported finding men frozen dead in the streets. The tragedy throughout Bessarabia, which is experiencing its hard winter, was further heightened today by fresh snowfalls which blocked relief trains.

The blighting cold is declared by meteorological experts to be the most severe in nearly 200 years. It has kept freezing populations at bay in their homes, many families spending their entire time under bed coverings. Peasants sleep with cattle and pigs in order to derive warmth from the animals.

In many towns and villages people are burning their furniture, ripping up floors and chopping out doorways between rooms in order to obtain fuel.

Czechoslovakian railroad authorities are burning petrol along the roadbed in order to keep passenger and freight trains from freezing to the rails.

Most of the ports on the Black Sea have been reported as icebound at Archangel. What icebreakers were available have not been powerful enough to break the 10 feet of ice that locks the harbors. All Bulgarian and Rumanian wireless stations are receiving continuous calls for help from vessels which have been unable to gain shelter.

Suspend Malden School Boy Held in Rum Case

Pending outcome of a liquor charge against him in Malden court, Joseph Boffman, 18, was suspended today from Malden high school by the headmaster, Thornton Jenkins. The boy was in the junior class and lives on Sammet st.

He was arrested last Saturday, charged with transporting liquor and operating an automobile without a license. The case is set for a hearing in the juvenile session a week from today.

If Boffman is found guilty, according to the school authorities, he will be permanently expelled, unless the school committee authorizes his return to classes.

A year ago another Malden high school boy was suspended under similar conditions, but was reinstated because in court it was brought out he was forced to deliver liquor, and he was graduated with his class this month.

Goldfinch in Poor Standing with Legislators

Massachusetts has its sacred cod and its trailing arbutus, commonly known as the mayflower, but the legislative committee on legal affairs today balked at making the American goldfinch the official state bird.

On the goldfinch petition of H. A. O'Brien, Jr., of Dorchester, the committee voted "leave to withdraw."

Hub Love Off?

BACK HOME ALONE

MARY GUILD IN N. Y. HOSPITAL IN COLLAPSE

New York, Feb. 13 (AP)—Mary Chester Guild of Boston, who broke her engagement to George Harrington, also of Boston, the night before the marriage was to have taken place at the American Cathedral in Paris, arrived on the liner Paris today, accompanied by her mother and two nurses, and was taken to the neurological institute for observation.

She was carried off the ship on a stretcher.

Dr. F. G. [illegible]ham of Boston, the Guild family physician, who had been summoned by wireless by Mrs. Annie Guild, Miss Guild's mother, met the steamer with an ambulance. He said, "It is clearly a case of nervous breakdown."

Mrs. Guild said that she intended soon to take her daughter home and later to the country.

Harrington arrived on the Mauretania yesterday. He declined to comment on the broken engagement beyond saying his fiancee had suffered a nervous breakdown.

'SALLIES' OUST BOOTH AGAIN

Sunbury-on-Thames, Eng., Feb. 13 (AP)—The high council of the Salvation Army today adjudicated Gen. Bramwell Booth unfit for service as general of the army. The vote was 52 to 5.

It was the second time in four weeks that the high council voted the general physically unfit to hold his high office, the first time being on January 16, by a vote of 53 to 2.

Immediately after the first adjudication, the general applied in court for an injunction restraining the council from selecting a successor. This the court granted on the grounds that the council should not have refused to hear his attorney.

Although the general thus again lost his case before the council, he still has at least another move left, as he had filed proceedings questioning the legality of the 1904 deed poll, under which the high council is functioning.

Doctor, 61, and Girl, 26, Wed in Secret

The secret marriage of Dr. Frank E. Schubmehl, 61-year-old physician, to Miss Marie A. Clark, 26, of Lynn, became known today.

Miss Clark is a graduate of the Lynn Nurses' School. They were wed on January 5 by Rev. Henry Coolbroth of the Advent Christian Church, Lynn.

Dr. Schubmehl is a widower.

FIANCEE TO QUIT U.S. IF HE GOES

Providence, Feb. 13—Romance won a temporary victory over law today when Rene Henri Herbin, former assistant steward on an ocean liner, was given six weeks in which to appeal to Secretary of Labor Davis against deportation.

Herbin is engaged to marry Miss Tullers Chapmod, 18, of West Warwick, whom he met two years ago on the liner and for whom he left his ship two months ago.

According to the youth, a disappointed suitor of the girl informed immigration authorities that Herbin was in the United States illegally.

Arraigned before U. S. Immigration Commissioner William Clark, Herbin was held in $500 bonds.

The bail was furnished by Mrs. George Chapmod, mother of Herbin's fiance, and after the hearing he accompanied mother and daughter back to the Chapmod home.

The girl says she will go to France if young Herbin is deported and that they will be married in Paris immediately upon reaching the French capital.

Attorney Alberic A. Archambault of Providence has been retained by Herbin to fight his case.

BOY IDENTIFIES MAN ON TRIAL AS SLAYER

Harry Land, one of two Chinese on trial in Superior Court for the murder of Lee Wee Kin, Concord sq., South End, laundryman, was identified today at the trial as the man who fired the shots at Kin.

Identification was made by Lee Soon, 16-year-old nephew of the murdered laundryman.

According to Soon, he was in the shop when a man "holding me around face," walked in and asked his proprietor:

"Are you Kin?"

Kin answered "Yes," according to Soon.

ASKED ABOUT TONGS

"What tong do you belong to?" the visitor demanded, Soon said.

"No tong. I belong to independent," was Kin's reply.

Then, Soon testified, he walked into the drying room because he did not like the angry looks on the man's face.

A few seconds later, according to Soon, shots sounded and then Soon ran to the shop. Soon said he saw no other man in the shop with Land.

Previously in the trial today, Leo Poy, the other defendant, was identified by a witness as one of the pair of Chinese he saw in front of the laundry just before the death shots were fired on the night of October 16.

SAW TWO MEN ENTER

In cross-examination, however, the witness, Edward Murphy, of Concord sq., admitted he could not identify Poy was the man.

Mrs. Helen Barnes, 3 Concord sq., testified she was in the rear of her home when she saw two men enter the laundry.

One stepped to the counter she said, and after a pause there were five more shots.

The second man then ran out during the firing and the man with the gun followed. They disappeared through Concord pl., she said.

Attorney William J. Patron said he met Poy in a drugstore at Tremont st. and Massachusetts ave. about 8 p. m., that Poy introduced him to a second Chinese seated back of the wheel of a car and that the two later drove downtown.

Mother Saves Baby Then Turns in Alarm

Mrs. Ida Bargeo today rescued her 18-months-old daughter when fire broke out in the kitchen of her home at 3 Prospect st., Lynn. Mrs. Bargod was hanging clothes on the rear veranda of the third floor apartment when she saw smoke issuing from a kitchen window. She rushed in and picked up the child, left it in a safe spot in the next room, and running to the street turned in an alarm.

Firemen quickly extinguished the blaze which is believed to have been caused by an overheated chimney.

A. O. H. Pilgrimage to Ireland in June

More than 500 New England members of the Ancient Order of Hibernians will sail from New York on June 22 aboard the Hamburg-American Line motorship St. Louis on an official pilgrimage to Ireland.

The pilgrimage will be led by P. F. Cannon of Clinton, past national president; P. F. McCarthy of Cambridge, state vice-president, and Dennis Slattery, past state president.

JAIL ALL KIN OF OBREGON SLAYER

Mexico City, Feb. 13 (INS)—Al[most] of the friends of Jose d[e] [Le]on Toral executed Saturday for the assassination of Obregon, were arrested today. They included his wife, [fa]ther and sister [Con]cepcion.

Upon direct orders from Presi[dent] Emilio Portes Gil, three [for]eigners arrested on Sunday at Tuxpla funeral, were sent to the frontier today for deportation from Mexico.

They are Alberto Custapano, Bolivian consul to Ciudad Lerdo; Edmund Thingren, a Swede, and Anuli's Giccone an Italian.

Bombing and kidnaping plots today threatened some of the most prominent figures in Mexican public life and caused heavy police guards to be placed about their homes.

Against this background there appeared in today's newspapers a second signed statement of President Emilio Portes Gil saying the government was convinced that "exalted fanatical (Roman) Catholics" were responsible for the attempt made against his life Sunday.

Three more bombs were discovered in the offices and homes of other prominent Mexicans, whose names were not revealed. Police meanwhile have made no arrests in connection with the bomb found in the offices of Governor Aaron Saenz of Nuevo Leon.

President Portes Gil, former President Calles and other prominent Mexicans have received threats against their lives similar to threats received by Obregon prior to his assassination, police revealed. Those to Calles threatened kidnaping of his daughter, Ernestina, who is Mrs. T. A. Robinson, wife of an American. Although Calles and his daughter laughed at them, a heavy police guard surrounded their homes today.

Forty-nine women and 19 men arrested at the funeral of Jose de Leon Toral, assassin of Obregon, have been turned over by police to the Governor of the federal district.

Of 250 Catholic priests known to reside in Mexico 236 have complied with government orders to communicate their addresses, it became known today.

Mary Garden Now on Way to Recovery

New York, Feb. 13 (INS)—The condition of Mary Garden, opera singer, who is ill at the Ritz-Carlton Hotel here, was reported improved today. The diva is believed to be suffering from influenza.

Girl Told Marriage Her Only Solution

By LOUISE RICE
Noted Graphologist

"C[an] ... tell me if marriage is meant for me? I am out of my twenties and idolize one of the opposite sex for several years. Do you think that he will be mine in the near future? I thank you.

"R. M. C. K., Brighton."

My dear. Now, really, you must know by this time that I am not a fortune teller. If you read my column you must know that I do not even believe in fortune tellers. We are in the hands of ... [you]rself," but be unselfish. Very few young men, unless already attached to someone, can resist a girl like that.

Be careful of your moodiness and impatience and irritability, all faults which you have in rather too positive a degree.

When the loops of h, l, f, and any letters which consist of or include loops are open—i. e., when there is a wide space between the two strokes which compose them, the writer is frank and rather inclined to show almost everything which is felt.

Such people usually are quick to laugh and quick to cry and are always affected by the society in which they find themselves. They are impatient of those who are too cautious and are apt to take on rash obligations and to promise much, which they will try to fulfill and which nearly always is too much for them.

The inflated loop writer is never accurate about small matters. However, it is false to say that such writers are without accuracy. They are often clever and accurate when tremendously interested and are sure of their opinions and beliefs—are warm partisans and violent opponents.

These inflated loop writers are never cold, precise and clever speakers or writers, but often have a good deal of eloquence when their enthusiasms are stirred.

HOOVER VICTORY AFFIRMED BY CONGRESS

Washington, Feb. 13 (AP)—Complying with provisions of the Constitution that fail to take into account the modern speedy dissemination of news, Congress met in joint sessions today to learn that Herbert Hoover was elected President and Senator Curtis, Vice-President last November.

The session was held in the larger chamber of the House and there the tellers, Senators Shortridge, Republican, California, and King, Democrat, Utah, and Representatives Clifford, Republican, Massachusetts, and Jeffers, Democrat, Alabama, made the formal announcement while filled galleries listened.

The electorial votes of each state were read and the totals were announced as follows:

"The whole number of electors appointed to vote for President of the United States is 531, of which a majority is 266.

"Herbert Hoover of the State of California has received for President of the United States 444 votes.

"Alfred E. Smith of the State of New York has received 87 votes.

"The state of the vote for Vice-President of the United States is 531, of which a majority is 266.

"Charles Curtis of the State of Kansas has received for Vice-President of the United States 444 votes.

"Joseph T. Robinson of the State of Arkansas has received 87 votes.

Was It "Spirits"? Hub's First Padlock Vanishes

The first prohibition padlock placed in this State under the new law, has disappeared from the building at Water and Chamber sts., Charlestown, where it was affixed by Deputy Sheriff Richard F. Sweeney on January 28, it was learned today.

The decree was handed down by the Superior Court on January 26, the first of its kind, three convictions for liquor sales having been obtained against the building, which contains a near-beer saloon on the street floor.

The "padlock," of course, was a typewritten document, tacked to the door by Deputy Sweeney. It announced that a section of the building was padlocked for one year beginning January 18, and that to remove the notice would constitute contempt of court.

CRUISERS BILL IS SIGNED BY COOLIDGE

Washington, Feb. 13 (INS)—President Coolidge signed the cruiser bill today.

The sweep of his pen was the last act necessary to authorize the addition of 15 new and modern cruisers and one huge airplane carrier to the navy.

It constituted as well the greatest single step that has been taken since the Washington Arms Conference to overcome British naval superiority. Even with these cruisers, however, the American navy will still lag behind the British in this class of vessel.

By congressional direction, all of the ships must be laid down within three years. The program calls for beginning construction on five each year.

The ultimate cost of the cruiser program is estimated at about $275,000,000, only about $50,000,000 of which, however, will be necessary until the fiscal year of 1931. The problem of finding the funds will be up to the Hoover administration.

BAR ROADS TO HEAVY LOADS

The State Department of Public Works today issued a list of State highways on which no vehicle, under the law, may be operated which with its load weighs more than 10,000 pounds, without a permit from the department.

The highways have been posted to show locations and periods of prohibition. If, in the opinion of the department, weather conditions permit, the restrictions will be removed at dates earlier than those named and the posters removed.

The periods of prohibition are, Roads in Barnstable county, Feb. 18 to April 1; Bristol and Norfolk counties, Feb. 18 to April 22; Plymouth county, Feb. 25 to April 10; Hampden county, Feb. 25 to April 22; Essex, Middlesex and Worcester counties, March 1 to April 22; Franklin, Hampshire and Berkshire counties, March 4 to April 29.

WOMAN IS HELD FOR LARCENY

Charged with 37 counts of larceny totaling $3000, Miss Anna A. Parker, real estate dealer with offices in Tremont st., was arrested today by Special Officer Ernest Fanjoy of the Mile st. division.

She is alleged to have obtained this sum by false representations from Mrs. Mary Quinn, 65, owner of a large amount of real estate and for whom, police say, Miss Parker kept books of account.

Arraigned in municipal court, Miss Parker pleaded not guilty and was held in $2500 for trial tomorrow. The larcenies are alleged to have occurred over a period of about four years, beginning early in 1924.

Ex-Kaiser's Brother Suffers From Cancer

Berlin, Feb. 13 (AP)—The Associated Press has learned from a trustworthy source that Prince Henry, the former Kaiser's brother and one-time commander-in-chief of the German navy, is afflicted with the same malady with which his father, the late Emperor Frederick III was stricken, namely cancer of the larynx.

His failure to attend his brother's 70th birthday recently at Doorn first called public attention to his condition.

ELLY NEY HEARD IN "UNEVEN" PROGRAM

By MOSES SMITH

Elly Ney, pianist, gave a piano recital in Jordan Hall last night. When she last played here Mme. Ney gave a disappointing exhibition, caused doubtless by the scanty audience. On the contrary, last night the hall was almost filled, but her playing was uneven, a curious study in contrasts.

Presenting a program of music by only Schubert and Chopin, Mme. Ney opened with a dull sonata of the former in D major, Opus 53. This work is almost laughable in its harmonic simplicity. It was beautifully rendered by the artist last night, but her enthusiasm for it is imponderable. It has, indeed, the virtue of transparency, but so has a plate glass window.

The same composer's "Wanderer" Fantasy in C major, is sterner, more lasting stuff. Mme. Ney presented it on a gigantic canvas. Having this notion in mind—and her playing was of "heroic" caliber—she had to build up such an enormous climax at the end that the resources of even a great concert grand piano were overtaxed. Harsh tone was inevitable under the circumstances, yet one forgave her for it, so noble was her conception.

A group of Chopin pieces immediately following were, on the other hand, presented as miniatures quite too small for the audience to grasp them clearly. Perhaps it would be truer, if less gallant, to say that the pianist was not in the vein of Chopin. She was half way through the F-sharp major Nocturne before she had even begun to character the music.

Even the A-flat major Ballade failed to stir her until she had reached the exciting middle section—and then her passion was torrential. The final number, the magnificent A-flat Polonaise, came to devoted performance. Nevertheless, we await keenly another appearance by this artist when she may play as she can.

Slayer of Two is Mad

COPLEY SOCIETY'S FINE ARTS BALL HELD AT THE HOTEL STATLER PROVES HUGE SUCCESS

DARK SKINNED SPANISH senoras, senoritas in mantillas, ragged vagabonds, Oriental dancers, Italian peasant girls, and many other gay and picturesquely costumed figures mingled in the throng which attended the Copley Society's fine arts ball at the Statler Hotel last evening. This event is always one of the most important functions of the season, and is invariably a huge success because of its position on the calendar, coming as it does just before Lent when there is a lull in social activities.

THIS YEAR THE AFFAIR was especially memorable as the golden anniversary of the Copley Society, and in honor of the occasion many of the most prominent members of the society were on hand to view the pageant, a colorful spectacle of unusual richness and splendor.

AMONG THE BOXHOLDERS were Mr. Holker Abbott, president of the society, who led the grand march; Mr. and Mrs. E. Sohier Welch, Mr. and Mrs. J. Tucker Burr, Mrs. Charles Sumner Bird, Mrs. Curtis Guild, Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Hopkinson, Mrs. John Chipman Gray, Mrs. Charles K. Cummings, Mrs. Quincy A. Shaw, Mrs. Charles Peabody, Mrs. John Lowell and Mrs. Thomas Allen.

INNUMERABLE DINNER PARTIES preceded the affair. Mrs. Benjamin F. Pitman was one of the hostesses who took advantage of opportunity to exercise her hospitality. Another hostess was Mrs. I. Tucker Burr, among whose guests were Miss Francesca Braggiotti and her fiance, John Lodge. Miss Braggiotti's dance of the Etruscan vase, one of the features of the ball, received the enthusiastic applause which always follows one of her appearances.

PERHAPS THE MOST PICTURESQUE and widely-acclaimed personage attending the ball was Mrs. J. B. Richardson, attired in the costume of Lady Ashmund at the French court. Her pink satin dress, which billowed over countless layers of petticoats, was set off with a collar of priceless lace. Mrs. Richardson is said to be the oldest charter member of the Copley Society, and she is proud of the distinction.

PERIOD DRESSES WERE very much in evidence. Miss Emily Coolidge was charming in a trailing, pink-flowered gown. Miss Mary Hopkinson also adopted the period style of costume, while her sister, Elinor, one of the debutantes of the year, wore a Russian costume.

Miss Polly Thayer was Spanish, in striking comparison to Miss Sally Cabot, who was a demure Quaker in black and white. Mrs. William Stone's costume was imported from Rome, while Miss Annie Nourse appeared as an Oriental lady. Mrs. Cyrus Dallin wore a gown of the previous century. Another of the charming Spanish ladies was Mrs. Sidney Hosmer.

JUNIOR LEAGUE GIRLS have offered their services as ushers next Saturday at the Hotel Statler when Angelo Patri will speak for the benefit of the Home and School Visitors' Association. This lecture will be of particular interest to those who are familiar with the speaker's work along educational lines.

GOLD STAR BILL FAVORED IN SENATE

By CORINNE RICH

Washington, Feb. 13—Gold Star mothers throughout the land have practically been granted their plea to let Uncle Sam's guests on a pilgrimage to the graves of their sons in American military cemeteries abroad.

This was strongly indicated at a hearing before the sub-committee of the Senate military affairs committee on two bills authorizing this tribute to the mothers of America who lost sons in the World War. A similar bill passed the House unanimously last session.

One of the bills is practically the same as the House bill, sponsored by the late Representative Butler of Pennsylvania.

It provides that the mothers and unmarried widows of American soldiers, sailors and marines buried abroad be taken to the graves of their dead in groups of 500 at the expense of the Government and under the management of the American Red Cross.

TROTSKY IS IN TURK CAPITAL

Constantinople, Feb. 13 (AP)—Leon Trotzky, former leader of the Red army and an exile because of his opposition to the policies of the present regime in Soviet Russia, has arrived in Constantinople from Russian Turkestan.

The Communist was traveling under an assumed name and it was hours before it could be definitely assured from the official source that he was on the ship.

The Illitch remained in the harbor some distance from the quay and Trotzky today was being kept under close guard.

PLOT AGAINST SOVIET IS BARED

Berlin, Feb. 13 (INS)—A plot supposed to have been backed by British oil interests and German Fascists to overthrow the Soviet regime in Russia by wholesale forgeries of Soviet currency will be unravelled before a German court.

A preliminary investigation has produced surprises because it connected with the plot the names of Sir Henry Deterding, British president of the Royal Dutch Shell oil group; Gen. Max Hoffmann, German military leader, who dictated peace to the Bolsheviats at Brest-Litovsk, and Capt. Erhardt, German Fascist leader, who participated in the Kapp putsch.

Charges were made that all secret records of the investigating judge had been photographed and that the photostats had been carried to England.

Coming soon after publication in England of the secret memorandum of Defence Minister Groener, showing Germany aspired to naval supremacy in the Baltic, the "betrayal" of the new secret documents to English interests has aroused all Germany.

Gen. Hoffman is dead. Sir Henry Deterding has denied any connection with the plot.

The German press asserts, however, that Hoffman as the "middleman," accompanied the leader of the forgers to London and conferred with circles close to Deterding regarding both the financing of the revolt against the Soviet regime and a concession to England in the Russian oil fields.

Jury Gives Belmont Woman Less Than Town Awarded

It cost Grace J. McGinnis of Belmont $201.67 today to question the fairness of the town of Belmont. Believing unfair an award of $30,000 for land taken by the town for school and playground purposes, she demanded that a jury fix the damages.

Today the jury returned a verdict in Middlesex Superior Court. It was for $29,788.33 instead of a higher sum.

3 SLAIN, 3 DIE IN MARDI GRAS ACCIDENTS

New Orleans, Feb. 13 (AP)—Mardi Gras glittered and sparkled in New Orleans, but not without its toll.

Six persons dead and more than a score injured, some seriously, were left in the path of Rex, carnival's king, when the supreme monarch departed upon the royal yacht for his distant "palace."

Henry J. Laux, 38, was crushed to death when he fell under the wheels of a carnival truck; Mrs. Margaret Wappler, 53, died from the blow of a hit-and-run automobile driver; Mrs. Elizabeth Janies, 42, succumbed to injuries received when she was hurled through the door of an automobile that struck a carnival truck, and three negro celebrators died in gun battles.

Three white men were beaten and cut in a street battle with a half hundred negroes.

Likens Present Day to the Renaissance

"WHAT are we doing to carry out the will of the man we honor?" asked Mrs. Herbert J. Gurney, beloved "war president" of the State Federation, speaking of Lincoln to the ex-regents of the D. A. R. "I am not of those who regard the present with pessimistic spirit," she said. "I believe that we are entering upon a new cycle of civilization which can be compared with the great revival of the 15th century—The Renaissance. A revival that gave new birth to art, literature, adventure and freedom. That gave a new country—our own America—to the world." The present day unrest and confusion she attributed to the changing scene of history through which the world is now passing. She emphasized the necessity of always being ready to do our part to make the new civilization better than the old.

"Prof. LeChatlier of the University of Paris has advocated the formation of an intellectually superior class in every country which hopes to hold a place of power in world affairs," Mrs. Gurney continued. "This class should come from the common people as well as from leaders, all developing imagination, creative thought, love of work, common sense and moral training.

"Observance and enforcement of law, clean and high-minded ideals of government, moral principles in practical politics, truth, reverence, a realization of a Divine Power which pervades the universe—these things we do not have to go to any scientist to learn. These are the principles that guided and governed the man whose memory we honor today."

BIRTHDAY PARTY

The West Roxbury Woman's Club celebrated its 18th birthday with a party at the Bellevue Theater.

The entire membership of 600 and the waiting list of nearly 300 enjoyed the program.

Beautiful "living pictures" of members and their children represented the various stages of a girl's life, from infancy to tranquil old age.

Little June Payson, posing as "The Age of Innocence," scored a hit when she forgot to hold her pose and blinked at the enthusiastic audience.

Mrs. Sidney True, art chairman, assisted by C. Hassler Capron posed the pictures to represent famous paintings.

The committee, Mrs. W. O. Little, Mrs. Howard K. Foster, Mrs. Nelson W. Howard and Mrs. Herman C. Petterson.

HONOR GUESTS

Mrs. John F. Walker, third vice-president of the State Federation, and Mrs. Walter Newell, founder of the club in 1911, were the honor guests.

Others who took part in the entertainment were: Mrs. James R. Rounding and her children, Betty Hamburger, Mrs. Willard H. Payson, Miss Evelyn Gilman, Mrs. Chester McArthur, Constance McArthur, Jean Frohock, Mrs. Anthony W. Peters, Mrs. William W. Conza, Mrs. James Hamburger, Master Howard and Barbara Petterson, Mrs. Gerardo Balbon, Barbara Foster, Mrs. James E. Adams, Mrs. Frank Mills, Mrs. Harold R. Duffie, Mrs. Walter C. Blaney, Francis Rossi, Mrs. Willard H. Payson, Evelyn Gilman, Adele Koopman, Phyllis Godfrey, Bunty Robertson, Carrie Stone, Mrs. Paul S. Peters, Mrs. Robert Hackett, Mrs. William Mitchell, Mrs. Thurston P. Day, Mrs. Forrest M. Larcher, Mrs. W. M. Vance, Mrs. M. B. Dunning, Mrs. Alvor Polk, Mrs. Charles Rohde, Mrs. E. C. Emerson, Mrs. Edwin J. Evans, Mrs. W. W. Shields, Mrs. Alonzo G. Howard.

SUNSHINE SOCIETY

The great need of entertainment in institutions, as found by a careful survey by Mrs. D. Fletcher Knight, when reported to the directors of the Massachusetts Sunshine Society brought immediate response from Mrs. Mina Del Castillo that a committee is being established to provide music for shut-ins, especially old folks homes. Mrs. Amy Y. Burns and Mrs. Carl Watson have been added to the committee, which is making plans for a benefit entertainment this spring.

Mrs. Charles Brent Sullivan reported that 15 wheel chairs are now in circulation.

Best Remedy for Obstinate Cough Made at Home

You'll never know how quickly a stubborn cough or chest cold can be conquered, until you try this famous recipe. It is used in millions of homes, because it gives more prompt, positive relief than anything else. It's so trouble at all to mix and costs but a trifle.

Into a pint bottle, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex then add plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey to make a full pint. This saves two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough medicine, and gives you a purer, better remedy. It never spoils, and tastes good—children like it.

You can actually feel its penetrating, soothing action on the inflamed throat membranes. It also promptly loosens the germ-laden phlegm, and at the same time, it is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly on the bronchial tubes. This three-fold action explains why it brings such quick relief even in severe bronchial coughs and "flu" coughs.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form, and known as one of the greatest healing agents for severe coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

A YOUNG WIFE who lives in a newly developed section said: My husband is a newspaper man and works at night. He works in the city and drives in and out. That leaves me helplessly alone, and I wish desperately that I had a car to get about in. I should like to go to the movies or call on friends, but the car-line is quite a long walk from the house and I have to depend on the friends who may call for me."

Every year more and more families are finding that the used cars sold by General Motors dealers make it possible to own a second or third car at very low cost. Used cars are opportunities in unused transportation, and offer a wide choice of body type and style.

If your family needs another car, let a General Motors dealer help you. You will be surprised to discover how much can be bought for a very little. And you may pay on the convenient GMAC Purchase Plan.

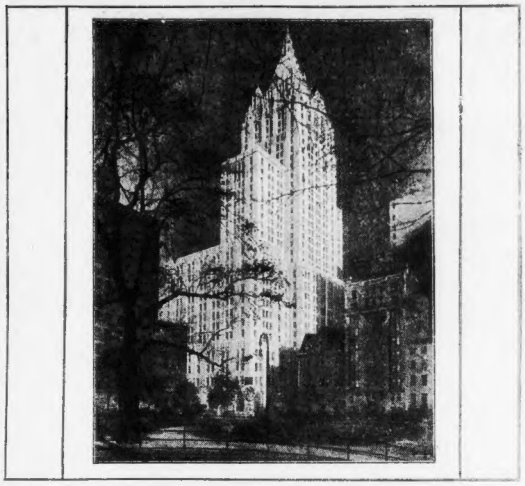
A DREAM REALIZED



NEW YORK LIFE INSURANCE CO.

(Incorporated under the laws of New York)

A MUTUAL ORGANIZATION, FOUNDED IN 1845

EIGHTY-FOURTH ANNUAL STATEMENT

To the Policy-holders:

Our Eighty-fourth Annual Report has been verified and is being filed with various governmental authorities. May I point out to you, the people chiefly interested, some of its salient facts?

As policy-holders you paid the Company last year in round figures $256,000,000.

The Company paid to you and to beneficiaries $156,000,000.

That left us about $100,000,000.

Our net reserves increased during the year $100,000,000.

We put that $100,000,000 in our reserves.

You may ask, what are reserves?

Broadly speaking, they are funds set aside from which future liabilities are to be met.

We put that $100,000,000 in reserves at the close of the year for that specific purpose.

A policy of Life Insurance is almost exactly like a bond. It will mature some day. Nearly all bonds mature at a definite date. Most policies of Life Insurance mature at an indefinite date, but all will mature, in some form, within a limited period of years.

A sound bond is protected by a Sinking Fund—from which the bond is to be redeemed at maturity. The Sinking Fund is accumulated by yearly deposits.

That $100,000,000 was our 1928 deposit, our addition to the Sinking Fund for that year.

The law requires it. If we had failed to make or could not make that entry (deposit) we would soon be declared insolvent by the Insurance Departments and the Courts.

The reserve increase for 1928 was large, but no larger than the law requires.

That we shall redeem all our bonds (policies) as they come due is certain. You know that.

The other Income of the Company was sufficient to pay all the expenses of acquiring $900,000,000 of new business in 1928, the care of about $6,500,000,000 of old business, taxes, $6,700,000, the care of invested funds, the maintenance of other legal reserves and a sum sufficient to pay in 1929 $5,000,000 more in dividends than we paid in 1928, and to increase the general surplus by $4,000,000.

In addition the Company loaned you on the sole security of your policies $52,700,000.

These are round figures, calculated to give you merely an outline sketch of the Company's activities in 1928.

SAVING YOUR MONEY

How much of the $156,000,000 we paid you or to beneficiaries during 1928 and how much of the $52,700,000 loaned you during that year will be lost because unwisely invested? That is a very important question. It goes to the very heart of the usefulness of Life Insurance. To save money by investing it soundly is difficult.

Even men of experience frequently make mistakes.

I do not overstate the truth when I say that few people having small amounts of money to invest do it wisely.

REMEMBER

You can leave the proceeds of your insurance with this Company in trust for your beneficiaries or you can leave any cash due under your policy and the Company will hold it, guaranteeing your principal and not less than 3% interest.

On all such funds we will pay in 1929 (as we have done for some years) 4.6%.

In 1928 you left with the Company in this way under various accounts $28,000,000.

Your total under these accounts on January 1, 1929, was $70,000,000.

That $70,000,000 is not just a deposit. It is mingled with the Company's entire assets and is a part of the Company's liabilities. It is backed, as all our liabilities are, by $1,500,000,000.

Finally study the balance sheet below. There you have the facts about our financial condition, while above you have a picture of the new Home Office: "A Dream Realized."

Show the "Dream" and the balance sheet to your neighbor.

SECOND SERIES OF QUESTIONS IN FLAG CONTEST

THOUSANDS OF ENTRIES ARE FILED BY BOYS AND GIRLS

ALL boys and girls who are contestants in the Nation-wide Flag Contest sponsored by the Hearst newspapers will find another set of eight questions on the history of "Old Glory" in today's Boston Evening American.

Clip out this list of questions and add them to those which were printed in the Boston Evening American on yesterday and Monday. Study these questions. Answer them at leisure after brushing up on the history of the Stars and Stripes.

In the interest of boys and girls who have asked permission to join the Contest and have no contest units located in their respective districts, the Flag Contest Editor requests those scholars to urge the principals of their schools and heads of local organizations to apply direct to him in care of the Boston Evening American for permission to conduct a unit.

BIG OPPORTUNITY

Regardless of the fact that two sets of questions have already been printed, there is still time for schools and organizations to become enrolled in this great Contest. Point out to your teacher that this Contest represents the opportunity of a life time, to all boys and girls between the ages of 14 and 18 inclusive—an opportunity to participate in one of the greatest patriotic educational movements ever launched in the country.

As to the awards of this contest, the highest award, the one that will be given to the boy and the girl who receives the highest honors at the National Contest in Washington on June 14, will be a trip around the world.

There will be 36 contestants in the finals for this national award. One boy and one girl from each of the 18 territories in which there are Hearst newspapers will be sent to Washington as part of their reward, as regional champions.

This trip to Washington will include a week's pilgrimage to patriotic shrines in the east, such as Independence Hall, Philadelphia, Valley Forge, Mount Vernon, Fort McHenry and others.

In addition to this trip, with all expenses paid, each regional champion will be given the Cross of Honor of the United States Flag Association. This Cross of Honor is the same medal that was presented to Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh by the United States Flag Association upon his return from France after his memorable flight across the Atlantic. The wearers of this medal are invested with the title of "Knight of the Flag" or "Lady of the Flag."

JURY JUDGES

These Regional Champions are chosen from among the school and organization champions. It is among the schools and organizations that the Contest will start. Any high school, or any patriotic, civic, or other organization in any community in the United States may enter this Contest upon receipt of authority to do so from the Hearst Newspaper that is responsible for the Contest in the territory in which it is located. There must be at least 25 contestants in each school or organization group desiring to conduct a contest.

Each of these school or organization champions will have his or her essay sent to the offices of the sponsoring newspaper in their territory, where those essays will be judged by a Regional Jury of Award, and the winners in this judging will be given the trip to Washington.

Briefly, the Contest requires that participants answer the 75 questions relating to Old Glory's history and write a brief essay on "Old Glory's Greatest Glory." The essay may be based upon any base of the Flag's greatness which the contestant elects to choose.

The composition may have to do with the flag's actual history, its progress, the vast natural resources it represents, or whatever else may appeal to the contestant as being an outstanding interpretation of the emblem's greatness.

In studying the 75 questions and preparing the required answers, the entrants may find a great deal of help in a little pamphlet, "The American Flag—Its Glory and Grandeur," published by the United States Flag Association, of No. 923 Fifteenth st., N. W., Washington, D. C.

UNITS ORGANIZED

This little book contains in condensed form all of the information necessary correctly to answer the questions. It is sold for 25 cents, which sum just covers the cost of printing and postage, and can be ordered by anyone from the Washington office of the Flag Association.

Purchase of this book is by no means compulsory; it is prepared merely to supply correct information to those who prefer to secure it in this manner instead of delving into school books or other reference volumes.

The local contests—those in which the entrants participate directly—are being organized in the various localities throughout the nation by school officials or by the heads of patriotic or civic organizations. The sponsoring newspapers cannot undertake to handle the individual offerings of the various contestants, and the only way in which one may join the competition is through the medium of one of these local contests.

New Names Added in Great Contest

Additional School and Organization requests other than previously acknowledged are as follows:

Needham High School, Needham, Mass.

Lynn Kiwanis Club, Lynn.

Berwick High School, Berwick, Me.

Berwick Grammar School, Berwick, Me.

Berwick Academy, South Berwick, Me.

Central School, South Berwick, Me.

Eliot High School, Eliot, Me.

Laura V. Dame School, South Eliot, Me.

Deering High School, Portland, Me.

OTHER APPLICATIONS

Mary F. Maslero, West Stockbridge; John M. O'Neil, Amesbery; Alice Riley, Dorchester; Frances Cutting, Roxbury; Marjorie Chase, Cambridge; Alfred Speigel, Roxbury; Millie Barra, Dorchester.

Be sure, all of you, to clip the additional eight questions published today.

Today's Flagism

On February 13, 1776, James Wilson, member of the Second Continental Congress, offered in that body an address to the American people proposing and discussing political separation from England. This was the initial open proposal in Congress for American Independence. On this date in 1795 the University of North Carolina was opened to students, the first institution of its kind which offered education to the youth of the land. Education and the American Flag have gone hand in hand since the earliest Colonial Days.

COMES HOME TO SAVE FAMILY IN FIRE

Detained after hours at his place of employment, Christopher MacDowell, of 88 Winthrop st., Medford, arrived home in time early today to save his wife and two small children from a fire in the basement that menaced them as they slept.

MacDowell saw smoke pouring from the windows of his home in the first floor of a two-and-one-half story wooden building, and rushing into the house he aroused his sleeping wife.

Meanwhile a resident of an adjacent building sounded the alarm and when firemen arrived they found a brisk blaze burning in the basement.

After carrying his two children and assisting his wife to the street, MacDowell aroused the residents of the upper story, Mr. and Mrs. Jeremiah O'Brien and their one child, and assisted them to the street.

The flames, starting in some rubbish behind the cellar stairs, spread through the partition into the first floor. Firemen confined them there. The loss was estimated at $2000.

Boston Fur Club to Dine and Dance

The Boston Fur Club will hold its annual dinner and dance Saturday evening. Over 600 reservations have already been made, and a special car will bring a delegation of the leading fur merchants of New York. The guests of the evening will be James M. Curley and David C. Mills, president of the National Association of the Fur Industry. The club is composed of the leading furriers, and department store and specialty shop buyers in Boston.

MARTHA SCHOOL DINES AT PINI'S

One hundred and twenty-five members of the Martha Lee School of Practical Cookery gathered at Pini's new restaurant at the Hotel Buckminster for a bridge luncheon yesterday afternoon.

Pini's is the winter quarters of the famous Weber Duck Inn, and serves the same duck dinners and luncheons that have made Weber Duck so popular.

Miss Katherine Clifford, Mrs. James Bacigalupo, and Mrs. Caroline I. Brooks were in charge of the luncheon arrangement. Bridge was enjoyed after the luncheon in one of the attractive ballrooms of the Hotel Buckminster.

Fr. Chamberlain to Preach Thursday

Rev. William V. Chamberlain of St. Francis de Sales Church, Charlestown, will preach at the evening devotions to the Little Flower of St. Stephen Church on Thursday. During Lent a special mass will be celebrated at 12:15 p. m. Little Flower services will be held after this mass and also at 3:30, 5:30 and 7:45 p. m.

Phone Aided Cupid As Lindy Courted His Bride-to-Be

New York, Feb. 13 (INS)—The telephone played a prominent part in the courtship of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and Miss Anne Morrow, it was revealed here today.

During the past year, when Lindbergh was flying here and there around the Western Hemisphere, he was the object of more than one frantic search on the part of long-distance phone operators. That the calls invariably originated in Mexico City caused no flurry of excitement at the time, but their significance is realized fully now.

Miss Morrow learned that regardless of how far Lindy flew the telephone could fly, so to speak, just as far.

500 KELVINATOR AGENTS MEET

New England's acceptance of Kelvinator electric refrigeration during the past year has been nothing short of remarkable, more than 500 delegates were told at the Kelvinator regional sales convention at Hotel Kenmore by H. Trouine, New England district manager.

He added that during the past four months the total Kelvinator business in Greater Boston area has been equivalent to the total business of the entire year 12 months ago.

George W. Mason, Kelvinator's president and general manager; W. E. Downing, retail sales manager of the local Kelvinator branch; Vice-President Burritt, in charge of sales, and Sales Manager Fernald of the commercial division were other speakers.

The domestic help problem is solved by taking a kitchenette apartment and the best are advertised daily in the For Rent columns.

LENT USHERED IN AT MANY SERVICES

Lent was ushered in today in Catholic and Protesant churches of Greater Boston with special services and with distribution of ashes.

The period of penance and fasting will last through until Saturday, March 30, the day before Easter, which, this year, comes several weeks earlier than usual.

The principal service in the Catholic archdiocese marking the opening of Lent was a solemn high mass celebrated at 9 a. m. in the Cathedral of the Holy Cross by the Rev. Neil A. Cronin, administrator.

Acting as deacon was the Rev. John R. Wall, and as sub-deacon the Rev. William B. Foley. The Rev. Harry M. O'Connor was master of ceremonies. A choir of 15 from St. John's Seminary intoned the chant.

Ashes were blessed before the mass and distributed afterwards.

All Catholic churches and virtually all Protestant churches have had special Lenten programs arranged for the holy season.

These services will be on Wednesday and Friday nights in Catholic churches. Additional masses also have been arranged. On each day at 12:15, a noon mass will be celebrated at St. Mary's church in the North End.

There will be noon day services in several Protestant churches during Lent, including St. Paul's Cathedral and Trinity Church. There will also be noon day services at the Tremont Theater under the auspices of the Greater Boston Federation of Churches.

Second 8 Questions in Flag Contest

9—What was the probable reason for selecting red, white and blue as the colors of our Flag? (Value two points.)

10—What does each of these colors signify? (Value two points.)

11—What exercised the prevailing influence in the selection of the stripes in the design of the Flag? (Value one point.)

12—Why are there seven red stripes and six white ones instead of six red and seven white? (Value one point.)

13—What, according to the Act of Congress adopting the Flag, did the thirteen stars in the first Flag of the United States represent? (Value three points.)

14—What famous statement did John A. Dix make regarding the American Flag? (Value one point.)

15—How many stars were there and how were they arranged in the Flag that inspired Francis Scott Key to write the "Star Spangled Banner"? (Value two points.)

16—Where and when did this event take place, and where is the Flag now? (Value two points.)

Cut out and save these questions.

Watch Friday's Boston Evening American for nine more questions.

and robs them of all lustre

It clings to teeth so ordinary brushing fails to remove it successfully. A new way dentists urge.

FILM is the cause of dull, discolored teeth as well as the serious tooth and gum disorders. Run your tongue across your teeth and you will feel this film. It absorbs stains from food and smoking and turns white teeth dull. It clings to teeth, gets into crevices and stays.

Film hardens into tartar. Germs by the millions breed in it. And germs, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. Ordinary brushing fails to remove film successfully. So dentists urge the special film-removing dentifrice called Pepsodent.

First, Pepsodent curdles film, then removes it in gentle safety to enamel. No other way will make teeth as sparkling white. Write for free 10-day supply to The Pepsodent Co., 1104 S. Wabash Ave., Chicago, or ask your druggist for full-size tube.

3 Pcs. WALNUT & Gumwood NOW $195

The naive French Provincial group shown consists of twin beds and bureau with handsomely burled fronts, and would ordinarily sell for $420. Chair extra. It is available in a 5-piece group (with dressing table and chiffonier) at $350. Usually $700.

You owe it to yourself and to your home to make your money go as far as possible. According to economists the American dollar is worth 62½ cents of pre-war value. But at Paine's it is now worth in many cases $2 of pre-sale value. Many groups and single pieces are marked half former prices.

How can we do it, you naturally ask. Only because a factory closed out its 1928 stock to us at a loss. Also we have ruthlessly reduced certain other lines "famous for quality" that we intend to discontinue. It makes a sale without counterpart for values and beyond competition.

To those who have never visited this store or who do not know Paine power to make money worth more, we extend a special invitation to come in and compare. Looking does not obligate. We are always glad to talk over with anyone their needs for the home, whether they buy or not.

"Loring" Mills Resume Tomorrow

Full River wire says Arkwright Mills, recently acquired by syndicate, of which Homer Loring is head, will resume operations Thursday after having been idle for a long time. In normal times plant gives employment to 800 operatives. Management hopes to have entire plant in operation not later than April 1. Installation of 100 automatic looms will be completed soon.

$6,000,000 Loan by State Near

The Massachusetts State Treasurer was today authorized by the Governor's Council to prepare for issuance and sale $6,000,000 of additional metropolitan water loan bonds, running for 30 years. Under the 1926 water act, bonds totaling $14,000,000 were authorized. Of this amount, $4,500,000 have been issued.

NO MARKET ON SATURDAY IF STOCKS BOIL

By FRANK H. MELOON, Financial Editor.

Wall and State sts., having had two marked holidays in rapid succession, find room for conjecture about the coming week-end. Will the stock market again be closed to relieve overtaxed brokerage house forces? The consensus of opinion is that the stock market will close next Saturday if the remainder of the "full market days" this week sees stocks boiling well above the 5,000,000-share-a-day mark. Otherwise, it is believed a Saturday closing is not to be expected. Incidentally, the next fixed holiday for the market comes a week from Friday, on Washington's Birthday. This seems sufficiently near at hand to relieve any pressure in sight at present, and most big houses are expected to maintain "skeleton forces" to work on books and papers on that day.

Despite the holiday there was plenty of work for brokers, and many were busy "catching up" with accounts both in Wall and in State Streets. There was also the usual "over the counter" trading.

Dr. David Jayne Hill, eminent diplomat, former Ambassador to Germany, seems to believe in thorough tariff revision. I have this from his pen the following: "We are a people of immense natural resources; resources which we have not always found it profitable to utilize, because our country is one of a high cost of production. Our standard of life, as we desire it to be high, is advancing, and we do not wish to lower it. Our economic problem is to maintain and if possible to increase it. If we could hold our present home and foreign markets, we should be in easy circumstances indeed; but with this be possible, in the new conditions which are coming, without new economic defenses?

New Hampshire legislators, readers of this column will recall, have been asked to abolish the sales tax by State employes, that is tipping at the expense of the Granite State. Commissioner of Taxation Brig.-Gen. H. M. Lord, Director of the U. S. Budget Bureau for nine months ago found himself in an interesting dilemma. The allowance made for tips has been eliminated, so Gen. Lord's bootblack was forced to go without his usual tip.

A budget with Gen. Lord is a budget—and just that. His notebook carried these items: "Two newspapers, 5 cts.; shoe shine, 10 cts.; tip fund exhausted); weighing self, 1 ct."

Gen. Herbert M. Lord

Gen. Lord commented: "My son, who is a major in the Army, runs his automobile and he does his other outlays, on a strict budget. Near the end of the month, if he has bought so much gasoline that the motor budget item is fat, he puts his car in his garage and walks until the first of the next month. That's the way Uncle Sam must run his business.

A certain employe had difficulty in getting to work on time, his delinquency finally becoming so frequent that the boss asked for an explanation.

"Well, you see, it's this way—I simply can't get up in time."

"Why don't you buy an alarm clock?"

"I've got one, but it doesn't wake me up."

"In that event I would suggest that you get a bigger one with a louder ring." But whatever you do, it would be advisable to report promptly in the future."

There was no more lateness. Curious to know how the change had been effected, the boss summoned the erstwhile delinquent one into his office.

"Tell me how you did it, Bill," he said.

"It was quite simple; I bought a parrot," he explained.

"A parrot! What's that got to do with it?"

"Well, it's this way. I set my alarm clock. The clock wakes the parrot up, and that darn parrot says we'd wake anyone up."

Hayden, Stone & Stone and others have sold privately a new issue of 33,200 shares of common stock without par value of the Johnson Motor Co., the world's largest manufacturer of outboard motors. The business of the company has grown from a prodution of 3500 motors in 1922 to 25,653 motors in 1928. Proceeds of this financing will be applied to the retirement of the company's outstanding $506,800 par value 8% preferred stock and to increasing its working capital.

Richard F. Hoyt, of Hayden, Stone & Co., will be added to the board of directors. Net sales in year ended September 30, 1928, totaled $3,348,623, and net income, after depreciation and federal income tax, amounted to $257,069, equivalent to $2.70 a share on the 95,000 shares presently to be outstanding. This net income represented a decrease from the previous year owing to the extraordinary expense incident to removal of the plant from South Bend, Ind., to Waukegan, Ill.

HANSCOM HALF CENTURY WITH BANKERS

Edgar F. Hanscom, cashier of the Atlantic National Bank, completed today 50 years of service for that bank and the Fourth National Bank, which was consolidated with it in 1912. Mr. Hanscom's desk, surrounded with flowers as he greeted many friends and business acquaintances who stopped in to congratulate him. The other officers of the bank presented him with a purse of gold, and wished him continued good health and success.

Mr. Hanscom was born in 1862 at Kittery, Me., the son of Rear Admiral John F. Hanscom, U. S. N., and Mrs. Margaret (Trefethen) Hanscom. In 1871 his father was transferred to the Charlestown Navy Yard and the family moved to Boston. Since 1885 Mr. Hanscom has lived at 137 Sycamore st., Somerville.

Mr. Hanscom was 18 years old when he started work as a messenger boy for the Fourth National Bank at the large—for him —salary of $3 a week. His first raise was to $4, and in the big street which warned the small room in which the bank did business at Bucklesbury and Lombard.

At that time the only officers of the bank were W. W. Kimball, president, and Henry C. Newall, cashier. There was no trust department, bond department and the capital of $200,000 with deposits of $250,000 was considered adequate for a flourishing bank. The capital of the Atlantic National Bank today is $6,350,000.

There were no electric lights, telephones, typewriters, adding machines nor bookkeeping machines in those days. "A clerk had to know how to add then," said Mr. Hanscom today, "but now they do not know anything about it and run to the adding machine."

In the course of time Mr. Hanscom worked in every department of the bank and he became assistant cashier in 1888, a position in which he continued after consolidation of the Fourth National with the Atlantic in 1912, and later when the Commonwealth Bank formerly the Commonwealth Trust Company, was consolidated with the Atlantic. On October 6, 1925, Mr. Hanscom was appointed to the position of cashier of the Atlantic National Bank on the death of William M. Homer

BOAT MOTORS' ISSUE SOLD

Hayden, Stone & Co. and E. E. MacCrone & Co. have sold privately a new issue of 33,200 shares of common stock without par value, of the Johnson Motor Co., the world's largest manufacturer of outboard motors. The business of the company has grown from a production of 3500 motors in 1922 to 25,653 motors in 1928, the product ranging from a single cylinder, 1½ horsepower motor to the new 1928 model 4-cylinder, 32 horsepower "Johnson Sea-Horse." The latter type has been tested out to a speed in excess of 40 miles an hour.

Proceeds of this financing will be applied to the retirement of the company's outstanding $506,800 par value 8 per cent preferred stock and to increasing its working capital. The management will continue in the hands of the men who have been responsible for the company's rapid growth in recent years and who are large holders of its capital stock. Richard F. Hoyt of Hayden, Stone & Co. will be a member of the board of directors.

The balance sheets as of September 30, 1928, after giving effect to this financing, shows a book value of $23.50 per share, of which approximately $11 are net current assets. Net sales in the year ended September 30, 1928, totaled $3,348,623 and net income, after depreciation and federal income tax, amounted to $257,069, equivalent to $2.70 a share on the 95,000 shares presently to be outstanding. This net income represented a decrease from the previous year, owing to the extraordinary expense incident to removal of the plant from South Bend, Ind., to Waukegan, Ill.

Miscellaneous Oil Prices Up in Week

Miscellaneous oil, fat and grease prices had a rising trend during the week ended February 8, the index number being 146.8 against 146.5 a week earlier and 143.8 at this time a year ago, according to the Oil, Paint and Drug Reporter.

Business was quiet, but supplies of not a few products are small and offerings of foreign commodities for arrival have been generally light.

Newmarket Dividend $1.50, Payable Feb. 15

Newmarket Manufacturing Co. declared a dividend of $1.50 payable February 15 to stock of record February 11. Quarterly dividend declared in November, 1928, was at the same rate. Theretofore and since February, 1923, dividends were paid at the rate of $8 annually.

Union Mills, Inc.

Union Mills, Inc., declared regular quarterly dividends of 50 cents on common and $1.50 on preferred, payable March 1.

Gold From England

Shipment of nearly $9,000,000 gold from England was received on Mauretania.

Unlisted Stocks Brokers Gather

A meeting of unlisted brokers was held to discuss the proposal of the Boston Stock Exchange to form an organization to trade in outside securities. As a result of the meeting, a committee, composed of representatives of three Stock Exchange houses with trading departments and three representatives of unlisted houses, was appointed to meet with the Boston Stock Exchange authorities to discuss the matter.

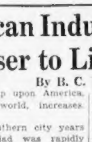
American Industry Hewing Closer to Lincoln's Ideals

By B. C. FORBES

LINCOLN'S grip upon America, upon the world, increases. The reason?

In a small southern city years ago a country lad was rapidly making his mark in a bank Country folks especially were attracted to him and the bank's business was increasing by leaps and bounds. It attracted local attention. One morning a country caller stood waiting outside the bank and asked a passer by when it would open.



B. C. Forbes

After giving the information and being told the visitor's mission, the local oil man asked, "Tell me, why do so many of you folks from the country come to see this young man?"

"I suppose it's because he is so self-reliant," came the reply.

The youthful banker was Percy H. Johnson, who, when only in his thirties, became president of the famous Chemical National Bank of New York.

Is it not because he was so "durned common" that Lincoln's bold open manhood grew? Newall Washington typified the flower of America's aristocracy. Abe Lincoln personified democracy.

Shakespeare charmed the intellect of his own day and of all subsequent generations, but Dickens won a warmer place in the hearts of his fellow countrymen and he is more widely read in British than is Shakespeare. Sir Walter Scott, an aristocrat, delighted with his brilliancy, but it is Robert Burns, who foresaw and sang of the essential democracy of the human race, who lives and glows incomparably today. Burns was the prototype of Lincoln. It was Scotland's plowman bard who foretold, "Its comin' yet, for a' that, that man to man the world o'er will brithers be for a' that."

What can the industrial and business world learn from the career of Lincoln?

Among other things, the value of winning good-will, the co-operation, the loyalty, the liking of others; the importance of becoming saturated through and through with the spirit of democracy; and, too, the wisdom of generously sharing honors and rewards with others.

America's towering industrial organizations are today run more democratically than ever before. The president of General Motors confies this principle so far that no new lieutenants are ever brought associated with him; every problem is fully discussed by all those interested, and only after such steps is taken until all agree on its desirability. Also this most profitable of all the world's corporations is the most liberal share of profits with those who help to make the profits, from high executive to ordinary workman.

America attracts Europeans who come here to study our industrialism. They cannot fathom how it has been possible to bring about the co-operation existing here between big players and employed, between executive and workmen. The enthusiasm of workers over new "records" achieved by their employers baffles foreign employers as well as foreign trade union delegates sent over here.

This spirit of co-operation is becoming widely illustrated, even between companies engaged in the same industry. Trade associations are never so fine. Helpful knowledge gained by one concern frequently is made freely available to other concerns. Discoveries made in our numerous magnificent research laboratories are promptly given to the world.

The modern industrial and business trend in the land of Abraham Lincoln is becoming increasingly in harmony with the character and ideas of Abraham Lincoln. Cynics may sneeringly deny it, but it is profoundly true that the goal set by the most enlightened of our "captains of industry" nowadays is the better service of the public, the furnishing of the greatest possible value at the lowest possible cost.

Even these days of quickly acquired riches through speculation, riches which beget envy and stir up other unfortunate feelings, there is one phase of Lincoln's career which is worth a pondering. Lincoln's single-minded success as a life ploddled and hated defeat more than most mortals.

At 25 he was defeated as a candidate for the Illinois Legislature. Before he was thirty he was candidate Speaker of the House in Illinois and was defeated. Two years later he was defeated as second Elector on Clay's ticket. He was a candidate for Congress and was defeated. At thirty-five he was defeated as Presidential Elector. At forty he failed to become Commissioner of the General Land Office. At forty-three he was again defeated as a candidate for President of Illinois. At forty-four he was defeated as candidate for the Senate. At fifty he had known little but defeat.

The closer industrial America hews to Lincoln's principles and practices. The more Lincoln is loved by as a model by our ambitious young men, the more worthy will the nation become of his struggles and sacrifices.

UNDERWOOD'S NET EARNINGS $6.45 A SHARE

For the year ended Dec. 31, 1928, Underwood Elliot Fisher Co. reports net earnings after all charges and federal tax of $1,641,436, equivalent after preferred dividends to $6.45 a share on the average of 660,535 no par common shares outstanding during the year. This compares with 1927 earnings of the component companies equivalent to $5.54 a share on only 645,200 shares outstanding when the present company was formed early in 1928 by amalgamation of existing units.

For the final quarter of 1928 alone, net earnings after federal taxes were $1,629,119, equivalent, after preferred dividends, to $2.28 a share on 660,535 common shares.

Balance sheet as of Dec. 31, 1928 shows cash items of $3,782,910 and total current assets of $17,019,976. Total current liabilities were $1,921,705, leaving net working capital of $15,097,371 and a ratio between current assets and current liabilities of 8.8 to 1.

In his statement to stockholders, Philip D. Wagoner, president, stated that $2,873,249 had been retained from surplus following a revaluation of the Underwood division's assets and adoption of accounting methods for the division in harmony with those of the Elliott-Fisher division. The increase of $609,784 in 1928 net income, he stated, was after an increase of $290,175 in the deduction for depreciation and an increase of $312,623 in the reserve for contingencies and future expenditures. During the year net current assets were increased $1,736,269, and notes payable of $3,620,000 were liquidated, the company now having none but current indebtedness. Preferred shares previously acquired, aggregating $100,000, were cancelled during the year, making a total of $1,800,000 preferred stock cancelled to date.

"In furtherance of the policy of offering to the business world a comprehensive line of labor-saving office appliance machines," Mr. Wagoner stated, "your company acquired in June, 1928, through its subsidiary, the Elliott-Fisher Co., the entire assets of the Underwood Computing Machine Co. In January, 1929, your company purchased the assets of the Neidich Process Co., leading manufacturers of typewriter carbon paper. This acquisition will be of great value and earning power, enabling your company to complete plans for the extensive marketing of office appliance supplies through its branches and dealers throughout the world."

The outlook for the office equipment industry for 1929 is promising and further advantages of consolidation and diversification of product, not as yet fully realized, should accrue."

Cities Service Ohio Line Is Completed

Subsidiaries of Cities Service Company have completed a 220-mile transmission line linking into one system properties extending from the Gulf coast of Texas to Lake Erie, and with 414,169 tons in January, 1928.

The completion of this project will facilitate the handling of a rapidly increasing load in these properties which in January established new output records greatly exceeding any previous peak load.

The new line traverses the heart of the Texas industrial territory and in addition to connecting the several operating plants of the two Cities Service subsidiaries—Toledo Edison Company and Ohio Public Service Company—with the main line of the Cities Service system at Canton with the system of Ohio Power Company, at Lorain with the Cleveland Electric Illuminating Company, and at Warren with the Pennsylvania-Ohio Power Company. It also ties in at Toledo and Shelby with the lines of The Ohio Power Company and Ohio Company, which permits an interchange of power between the Cities Service properties and this system.

Millions of busy men and women are learning the secret of the exerciser in the vest-pocket box for a dime.

Cascarets give your bowels as much real exercise as they get from an hour with the boxing gloves; in fact, suits and ordinary hardtimes don't get like Cascarets. These little goodies only mechanical or chemical action. They weaken your bowels.

Every time you use Cascarets your bowels become stronger. They are made from Cascara Sagrada, which stimulates the peristaltic action and overrides the lazy muscles. Nothing else does this! That's why Cascarets are selling at the rate of 20 million boxes a year, and people everywhere depend on them to relieve headaches, biliousness, dizziness, sour stomach, indigestion, constipation, etc.

LETTERS AT RANDOM

As a guide to the prevailing thought of the general public, the Boston Evening American is printing each day a number of excerpts from letters from its readers, written in connection with the Hearst $25,000 prize contest.

These letters are chosen at random, and their publication has no special significance, either as to their individual merit, or their chances in the contest.

Whether published or not, all plans entered in the contest will have the same careful consideration by the judges. Read these letters day by day in the Boston Evening American, whether you are planning to enter the contest or not.

Contestants are advised to rely entirely upon the mails in submitting plans or asking for information. It will serve no purpose to bring your plan or your questions to the editorial office in person.

The contest editor can be reached only by mail and will not discuss matters relative to the contest, either in person or on the telephone. Below are interesting excerpts from a number of letters recently received for entry in the contest:

MRS. M. E. dELL, Brookline. —What does the word "temperance" mean anyway? So many people are talking about temperance meaning to refrain from strong drink, but that is not so. We are told in the Book of Books to be temperate in all things. Lack of education and training is all wrong. The only thing to do for the prohibition question is to try and instill in the minds of the younger generations the idea of being temperate in all things. This, I think, will help greatly.

PETER W. MARCHAND, Maplewood, — Educating people to use liquor by means of lectures and moving pictures certainly has proven a failure. Trying to force people to accept a law which deprives them of their liberty in the use of liquor is deplorable.

REPEAL URGED

I believe if the Government would control the liquor situation we would soon be back to the good old days we started from. Thus the people would then retain their liberty.

DONALD S. FISH, Groton, Ct.— Repeal the Eighteenth Amendment, enact Federal legislation similar to this plan—permit each state to decide by vote as to whether or not they desire total, partial or no prohibition. The states desiring no prohibition should be required to adhere to the following: A superintendent should be appointed for the distribution of liquor, whose duties it will be to issue licenses to distillers of alcoholic beverages of less than 12 per cent. alcohol and to superintend the state-owned liquor trade of intoxicating liquors. He should also establish main warehouses to meet the demands of the state. These warehouses should supply smaller distributing units in the cities and towns.

Any state desiring partial prohibition may have the same upon a majority vote. Such states should provide a department and a department head who shall issue licenses to distillers, grocery stores and jobbers to dispense alcoholic beverages.

Any states desiring total prohibition shall be responsible for their own enforcement and should not receive any aid from the Federal Government.

HERMAN E. VOGEL, Pascoag, R. I.—I submit the following simple plan to achieve temperance for the people of the United States. I suggest that the people of the United States cease drinking intoxicants of any kind. The problem would then be solved.

PENALTY PROVIDED

L. HAROLD CLARKE, Augusta, Maine—The Eighteenth Amendment should be strict'y enforced and for this end I propose the following plan which has proven superior to anything previously worked out in the state of Maine. The state police in this state are under a military head, due to the fact that the civilian heads were unsatisfactory, and therefore since the head of the police here is an army officer why would it not be feasible to train underofficers and men by army methods. The army training is of such nature that at least a part of the bribery, blackmail and what not which is present in all the police forces of the United States would be lacking. In other words, the army training would tend to make the men immune from the present evil effects and thus help them to be more self-reliant.

ALFRED T. LINCOLN, Montello, —In this plan I do not only want to have a modification of Prohibition, but also to have a chance to eliminate these lawbreaking foreigners and bootleggers from American soil. Here's how to do it: Grant a repeal of light wines and beer; of course a good many of our harder drinkers will not be satisfied with this milder form of drink, so there will have to be another law made to stop the manufacture of harder beverages. If, after the repeal is put into effect and a person is caught and convicted of the sale of illegal liquor, they should be deported to their native land. They are a naturalized citizen they should be treated the same as American. If not naturalized they should be deported to their own country as undesirables. Any person caught buying it should also be subjected to the same punishment.

JOSEPH C. CALHOUN, West Quincy, — I am neither a politician nor a public citizen of any kind, and it matters no difference to me whether or not the country is bone-dry or soaking wet, and I imagine that there are thousands who feel the same way. I do shout it, but for the sake of the vast majority of people who like a drink every now and then, I submit the following for a substitute or an amendment of the Eighteenth Amendment.

FEDERAL LAW

Some people thing that each state should have control over the liquor question but this, I think, would make conditions those which now exist between Canada and the United States. Prohibition is a federal law, and I think that anything that can be done on this subject should be carried out by the federal authorities with all possible aid given by state and city officials. First and foremost, there should not be any public saloons or corner barrooms. Cafes and hotels should be allowed to sell wines and beer only, but not over a bar. It should be served at the tables with the regular meals. Light wines and beers should be sold by the government in stores in the various cities and towns, but if this is not feasible, should be sold in stores having a federal permit, the owners of these stores to be liable to severe penalties if the laws are not abided by. No drinking should be allowed in these stores, and they should not be open on night or Sundays and should close at the end of each business day. Sell hard liquors only on doctor's prescriptions, and do not limit the amounts which doctors may prescribe.

When all is said and done the heavy drinker who wants his hard liquor will get it just the same as he does now, but some such plan as I have outlined will prevent the average person from breaking the laws of the country to secure a drink of beer, which as we all readily agree, is no sin and nothing to be ashamed of, so the best thing to do is to satisfy the average person and keep the country as free as possible from law breakers.

P. J. MCGPHY, Providence, R. I.—Amend the Volstead Act permitting the manufacture of light wines and beer and in so doing produce a revenue to be used in the cause of temperance. The alcoholic contents should be decided by a proper commission and of the states decide whether or not they should be wet or dry. All liquor should be under the control of the Federal Government. The strong drinks should remain as they are now, except that they could be dispensed through the government agencies, and at a fair price so that the poor people could purchase it. Under no conditions must the saloon return.

I think that the people in Washington should use a little of old Ben Franklin's horse sense for a good solution for all concerned, and radio talks broadcasted all over the country may cause people to do their part, and the press also should help, then will temperance be a success ending a long and hopeless battle.

Congress will be doing a good thing by amending the Volstead Act permitting the use of light wines and beer. Then they will be legislating for the people nationwide temperance.

HORSE SENSE

DELLA M. BUAHEE, Taunton, —I think that the present crime wave in our beautiful and prosperous country is due to prohibition. Any one can easily see if they want to what a blunder prohibition has turned out to be. I can truthfully state today that there is more liquor than ever and most of it is poison. It seems a pity that the children can get hold of it, and if we had saloons the proprietors would not allow children to have it because they would lose their license. There has also been a great deal of graft in this prohibition game; more I think than has ever been exposed to the public.

I think we should have a few saloons in each large city or town for the sake of light wines and beer only. Saloons should be closed by 10 o'clock and not allowed to open on Sunday or holidays. This would do away with the bootlegger and rum-runner and would be far better than the present prohibition. You cannot stop a man from drinking and the existing conditions prove it.

WILLIAM GEO. EVANS, Andover, —The evidence that we have on hand at the present time tends to show us that the Eighteenth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States has not accomplished the purpose for which it was enacted. In fact, it has created a condition that is far worse than it was before the amendment went into effect. As such year draws to a close we cannot help but note the alarming increase in both the number of bootleggers and the amount of liquor used by persons who fought against before prohibition. Liquor is demoralizing the youth of today—both the male and the female—this condition no doubt was caused by the Eighteenth Amendment, which the average citizen believes to be outrageous and violates his fundamental rights and privileges. With this thought in his mind the average citizen does not intend to obey this law, therefore, a change must take place as the Eighteenth Amendment cannot be enforced by law, or the support of the nation.

ENACT LAW

Repeal the present Eighteenth Amendment, but at the same time enact a law whereby the Federal Government alone could manufacture, control, distribute and sell all spirituous, vinous and malt liquors of intoxicating nature.

ANTON LANGHAMMER, Pawtucket, R. I.—That reform work, like charity, should start at home let every mother, wife and sweetheart realize that if she not only tries to reform, but perseveres in reforming and keeping reformed through her gentle persuasion the men folk of her limited family circle, she has done more than her share in the betterment of mankind and does not have to become a reformer at large. Then if woman understands fully her inalienable rights and duties in the light of proper education, and we give her some authority to act as guide and judge in the immediate handling of the temperance question of her own folks, leaving it to her to approve or disapprove the issuance of liquor to her husband or sons, she will certainly know how to exercise that authority with due discretion.

CHARLES EDWARDS SIMMS, Watertown — You are to be congratulated in offering a prize of $25,000 for the solution of this prime-issue question. In 1917, when the war was on, a proclamation was sent out from Washington to close the breweries and saloons—this was to conserve the grain and we did not protest at that time because we wanted to see the war over. The Government promised to open up the breweries and saloons as soon as the war was over, but when the soldiers returned they found only the Volstead Act to take their places.

A prayer—Oh, Christ, who turned water into wine at the wedding feast, please hasten the day when we can celebrate the wedding of our sons and daughters and grandchildren without offending the Volstead Act, the Anti-Saloon League, the Eighteenth Amendment, the Women's Christian Temperance Union and the Methodist Church and its public morals. Amen

Here Are Rules in Hearst Temperance Contest

THE purpose of the contest is to obtain a practical plan, as a substitute for prohibition, which will secure better actual temperance conditions, which will be more easily possible of enforcement by State and Federal authorities, which will offer less encouragement to crime and tend less to debauch the public service, and which will not so outrage and violate the fundamental rights and personal liberties of American citizens. The rules and conditions of the contest are simple and are as follows:

1—Every person is entitled to enter the contest, but no one person may submit more than one plan.

2—The practicable plan proposed as a substitute for prohibition must be set forth in an article containing not more than one thousand words.

3—This contest will close on April 30, 1929, and no plan which has not been mailed and postmarked on or before that date will be considered.

4—The articles submitted in the contest will be judged by a committee of eminent Americans, the personnel of the committee to be announced at a later date.

5—The full prize of $25,000 will be awarded to the contestant submitting the best plan as a practicable temperance substitute for prohibition.

6—If other plans not awarded the first prize shall still be considered worthy of some compensation by the committee, a second prize of $5,000 and other prizes of $1,000 each may be awarded.

7—Articles submitting a plan to be considered in this contest may be sent to the Temperance Contest Committee, care of the editor of any one of the following Hearst newspapers: Albany Times-Union, Atlanta Georgian, Baltimore News, Boston Evening American, Chicago Herald and Examiner, Detroit Times, Los Angeles Examiner, New York American, Omaha Bee-News, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Rochester Journal, San Antonio Light, San Francisco Examiner, Seattle Post-Intelligencer, Washington Herald, Wisconsin News (Milwaukee).

(If you have no objection to publication of your plan, please write "May print" in upper left hand corner of first page.)

Youth, Once Barred From Rum, Now in "Speakeasies"

In the days of saloons the younger element was not allowed to enter rum houses, but today all they have to do is go around the corner to any of the so-called speakeasies and there get all the beer, wine and the deadly poison drink known as moonshine. From a plan submitted in $25,000 Temperance Contest.

How Best to Use Vicks VapoRub After the Flu

Late Winter Colds are Doubly Dangerous this Year; Don't Let them get a Start.

If you catch a fresh cold, don't keep it overnight. If possible, go home and go to bed. Take a laxative and a hot lemonade, apply hot wet towels over throat and chest until the skin is thoroughly reddened. Then rub vigorously with Vicks. Spread on thickly and cover with warm flannel.

Leave the bed-covering loose, so that the vapors, released by the body-warmth, may be freely inhaled. At the same time, Vicks acts through the skin like a poultice.

Repeat this treatment every four hours, eat lightly, and stay in bed until the cold is broken. Complete rest helps the body throw off the cold more quickly.

Mothers especially appreciate Vicks for the children. As it is applied externally, it can be used freely and often, without upsetting delicate digestions, as too much "dosing" is so apt to do.

A Loving wife's COMBAT with a SIREN'S love

Read this gripping true story—straight from the heart of a man whose life has been an adventure of poverty and wealth, romance and shame, and—two women.

"CHARLEY! CHARLEY!—I could forgive you once, but now—"

The man who writes this story will never forget that heartbroken cry.

In stark, simple language, he tells you this story of stirring heart drama that grips you and holds you breathless to the end.

With no attempt to shield himself, he tells how drink and lust for the other woman drove a beautiful romance from his life, and sent him to the very brink of degradation and ruin.

And then the promise he gave to the woman who loved him...a promise made like a man and kept—like a cad!

For the weakness was in him yet...and how well the other woman knew her power and allure! One more tryst? Yes, one more—in separate motors to another city—

Fateful meeting! Little did they dream that another car was on the road that night, driven like mad by the woman whose heart was breaking but whose hand was steady...driven with one desperate resolve to—

CHAPTER 3.

"NOW, now," said Mark as Edison finally faced Miss Pennell. "I don't want to cause anybody any more trouble than can possibly be helped. Young lady, those are your clothes in there, aren't they?"

"Yes," the girl stammered. "But —but—"

The young man seized his hat and ran from the room. The girl burst into tears.

Then, to the startled ears of Mark and the doctor, came the report of two shots. They leaped to the door, and opened it.

The prone body of the Russian soldier lay in the corridor. Sewell's will came to them. The doctor had lost his youthful calm, and Mark was telephoning for police.

A moment later Edison appeared in the doorway. He stood there, But I only took one look at him by the sight of the body.

"Good God!" he cried. "I just passed him a moment ago and he was alive. He closed the door for me."

"But who—" cried Mark. "Both of them! Alive! Alive! Alive! He closed the door! He went to examine it, reported it locked from the inside!"

Just then Mrs. Pennell appeared in the doorway. "Who shot the butler? Oh, my dear, what's happening to Miss Pennell?" asked the doctor.

"Nothing much," said Mark.

"You know," ventured the doctor, "I think I'd like a talk with the young lady."

"Go ahead" invited Mark as the two departed. So the doctor called a cab and asked to be driven to an all-women's hotel, where Miss Pennell was stopping.

When he appeared, he found a corner in the writing-room where they could talk undisturbed and assured her that Edison would be out of the Tombs in [illegible] four hours.

At 3 in the morning, IRVIN COBB finally said: "I'll Do It!"

IT was at the Crowley Club, down on the Gulf, in Louisiana, and we were getting up at 3 A.M. to shoot ducks.

From the time we boarded our train at New York, Irvin and I had been discussing a novel in which Irvin might tell of a phase of American life which had passed.

IRVIN S. COBB

It was a phase of life so rich in color and romance that I pleaded with him to write that novel, because he was the only writer capable of treating the subject with knowledge, understanding and feeling.

A novel which would tell the story of the Bourbon aristocracy of Kentucky. An aristocracy composed of the proudest, yet the most hospitable people this country ever produced. An aristocracy which made Kentucky famous for its fair women, its fast horses, its fine whisky.

Irvin was afraid of it. "Some will think it's an argument in favor of liquor and condemn me," he said; "others will be as positive it's an argument against prohibition."

"If it's as impartial as that," said I, "it will be a great novel."

It is a great novel. There's humor. And there's tenderness. And there's that intangible something which Mark Twain got into his writings. It tells a story that could have happened only when and where it did happen, and could have been written only by the Kentuckian who wrote it.

You'll like it. It's just the sort of story—and story telling—which makes Cosmopolitan different from any other magazine in the world, a magazine so distinctive that people all over America are glad to pay 35 cents for it. [R. L.]

Busy Season Ahead
Braves in Calcium
Sox Look Good

Every Optimist
Sees Tribal Glory
Fans Hope Again

By NICK FLATLEY

SEASON SHOULD BE PEPPY, ALSO

NOW that the large misunderstanding has been arbitrated, and we are to have Sunday baseball, Boston fans are waking up to the fact that they may have a very interesting season ahead. The whole baseball world, for instance, is watching with sarcastic eye, to see what Judge Fuchs can do as a bench manager. He is the first, positively the first, inexperienced pilot in the history of the pastime.

Nick Flatley

There have been skippers who had but scant minor league experience, but the annals of the big show tell of no one sufficiently courageous, or it may be foolhardy, enough to take a shot without having been previously closer than a box seat. To the baseball boys it is like putting a Minnesota farmer at the wheel of a schooner and sending him off on a trip around Cape Horn.

The Braves, aided and abetted by the recent lamentable explosion, will be in the spotlight from the minute they start practice Monday. There's one thing sure, however. The team cannot be worse than it was last year.

This owner-manager has surrounded himself with plenty of baseball brains and experience, and perhaps that's all a manager needs. We imagine the Judge will find that flash judgments on the bench are different slightly from second guesses in the royal box. But there's a lot of talent around and if a quick-working system can be arranged, all will be well.

Jawn Evers, Hank Gowdy, Rabbit Maranville and Joe Dugan combine a flock of stuff and maybe they can shuffle things out. But the thing doesn't look good to any of the experts, who grow sour and cynical when miracles are mentioned. This will, however, take most of the curse off a lot of things that may well be forgotten.

Further than that, the impression is around that Will Carrigan finally has collected himself a ball club. Will did very well with his collection of inherited misfits. Now he has traded and swapped until he has something that resembles a big league array to start off with.

We remember William last spring down at Bradenton, Florida. He gazed sadly at the flock of athletes hopping around the ball yard.

"If I can have a couple of miracles happen," he said dismally, "I may be able to start a real ball club in another year."

Bill had two miracles—Ed Morris and Buddy Myer. He still has Ed, and instead of Buddy, he has five youths, each one of whom would have been rated as highly as the surprising Myer a year back. Carrigan is about ready to go, and the native rooters know it.

SEEMS TO US THE STOVE LEAGUE WAS FUELLED WITH COKE THIS WINTER.

The holdouts usually hold the winter stage, but this year it was the handouts.

MISTER JAWN EVERS SAME OLD OPTIMIST

JAWN EVERS, who will be the Right Eye of the Braves and probably 270 degrees of the Left, speaking. Jawn dropped in to make a speech last night, and is dropping right out today, en route to Florida, where his son is a budding baseball star.

"There has been a lot of fun poked at the Braves this winter, but let 'em laugh now. This ball club will surprise a lot of the boys. It isn't the usual winter hokum, either. That has been a better ball team for three or four years than it has shown, and it's due to deliver.

"A lot of stuff on that club, and it's time it got rolling in the spring It looks to me as if there never had been the right drive in there. It will be there this year, that's a pipe. And, looking things over, there's a bunch of baseball brains around the club.

"Boys like Hank and the Rabbit and Joe Dugan know what it's all about. They will pull along that gang that has been laying dead. And the three of them are real big league ball players. Naturally, I've been watching the Braves all winter, and I must say I think the club did a lot of remarkably good buying and trading.

"Players get sore when they're panned and laughed at all the time. Usually they sulk, but once in a while they boil over and wreck the scenery. I have a strong hunch that the Braves will pry off the lid in exactly that spirit in April."

Jawn is the same old optimist, but his wild spirit has been smoothed somewhat by the passing years. He has the same keen judgment, which should be more valuable than ever with the fiery temper that used to wreck it left somewhere along the back trail.

NURMI IS TRYING THE VIOLET RAY TO LOOSEN UP HIS MUSCLES. WHAT HE NEEDS IS THE JOIE RAY.

The ath-a-letes are going South,
The pitchers and the catchers;
And so, too, are the baseball fans
With nickels, dimes and quarters.

GOOD baseball judges will tell you that both the Braves and the Red Sox have been guilty of corrupt baseball practices any old time during the past three or four seasons. Nor had either gang any deliberate intention to violate the spirit of the law.

THIS Sunday baseball may prove here that two clubs can live more cheaply in one ball park.

Notre Dame to Stay in "Its Own Back Yard"

"Academically it is not sound to have a band of roving athletes. We're called the Ramblers, but not because we like it and we propose to give up much of our football rambling in the future."

So said Father Charles L. O'Donnell, president of Notre Dame University, at a luncheon given in his day honor by the Notre Dame Alumni Association of New York at the Fraternity Club yesterday. The statement that the most traveled team in the country would settle down at home for the most of its games hereafter was announced to-

Stribling Objects to Mass. Referee

FAST, FUNNY SKATERS READY TO GO ON FLASHING BLADES

EVERY KIND OF ICE ACTION AT GARDEN TOMORROW

The American Legion Carnival at the Boston Garden tomorrow night will be a brilliant affair, with Olympic and world champion fancy and figure skaters performing, and a fine hockey game between the University Club and the B. A. A. sextets. Plenty of comic features are rehearsed now. The funny antics should draw a lot of laughter.

Stribling Opposed to Mass. Referee

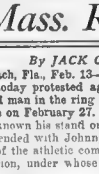
By JACK CONWAY

Miami Beach, Fla., Feb. 13—Pa Stribling, representing his fighting son, today protested against a Massachusetts referee being the third man in the ring when Jack Sharkey and Stribling clash here on February 27.

Pa made known his stand on the referee question at a conference he attended with Johnny Buckley, Jack Dempsey and the members of the athletic committee of the local post of the American Legion, under whose direction the contest will be held.

"Stribling has boxed five or six times in Massachusetts," said Pa, "and he always ended up with the decision his way. This was true even when the batting was close.

"In view of the fact Sharkey comes from Boston, the ordinary fan would figure he would have an advantage if a Massachusetts referee had charge of the tussle. I have full confidence in the fairness of the Massachusetts Commission, but I would rather see somebody selected to referee from some state other than Massachusetts.



Jack Conway

"There are a number of outstanding referees in the North any one of whom would be acceptible to me."

During the conference the following list of referees was submitted by Buckley, Stribling, Dempsey and members of the legion.

Athletic Committee:

Walter Eckersall and Dave Miller, Chicago; Tom Riley and "Razz" Nolen, Philadelphia; Matt Hinkle, Cleveland; Slim McClellan, Detroit; Lou Magnolia, New York; Ed Dickerson, Grand Rapids; Frank McCracken, Philadelphia; Jack O'Sullivan, New York; Jack Sheehan and Johnny Brassil, of Boston; Harry Ertle and Slim Breuning, Jersey City; Jake Abel, Atlanta; George Blake, Los Angeles; Jim Griffin, San Francisco; Mike Collins, Minneapolis; Harry Graham, Miami; Reny Dorr, New Orleans; Howard Levingstone, Miami.

Pa Stribling and Buckley were given until Friday noon to see if they could get together on the question of the referee.

In the event they are unable to do so, the contracts of the rival boxers call for the referee to be named by the Massachusetts Boxing Commission

It was agreed at today's meeting that there shall be an alternate referee as well as the first choice. The idea of the alternate referee is to have some one in readiness in case something should happen to the original selection.

SHOWS GOOD FORM

Sharkey displayed good form in his boxing. His judgment of distance was good, while he was exceptionally fast.

Sharkey boxed DeKuh in December and Christner in January. As a result, he was in good condition when he first came here. His judgment of distance had been sharpened up by plenty of hard ring work.

The DeKuh and Christner bouts each went the full distance of ten rounds. This gave Sharkey 20 rounds of milling which is the best possible preparation he could have had for a meeting with a tough fellow like Stribling.

With the date of the fight just two weeks off, the hotels of Miami are already crowded. It is difficult to secure reservations at most of the leading hotels.

BIG FIGHT CROWD

The bulk of the people here will not leave until after the fight. Many of the fans are leasing apartments as they can be secured at reasonable rentals.

Stribling continues to rule a 7 to 5 favorite in the batting with very little money in sight. Most of the bettors are anxious to size up the rival battlers in training before placing their money.

Stribling was to resume training today after a fishing expedition in the Everglades.

Pat McCarthy has been signed up to meet Tony Fuente, one of Stribling's sparring partners, in one of the preliminary matches to the Sharkey-Stribling affair.

BULOW IS RULED ABSOLUTE BOSS OF SCHMELING

By DAVIS J. WALSH,
International News Service Sports Editor.

New York, Feb. 13—Madison Sq. Garden's corporate control of Max Schmeling's destinies over any period of time was declared out of order today by the State athletic commission, which thereupon went on record as reaffirming Arthur Bulow, the German manager, as the only man qualified to make Schmeling's matches, not even exclusive of Schmeling himself. Joe Jacobs, Billy McCarney and Charley Rose, American managers who had taken the control of Schmeling out of Bulow's hands, were notified that they were not to interfere with Bulow's management. It was a new rule, covering this particular situation, was drafted and made finis before the end of the tempestuous meeting.

Schaefer-Cochran Play for Title

New York, Feb. 13 (AP)—The world's 18.2 balkline billiard crown, worn since last March by Edouard Horemans of Belgium, is to come back to the United States. Welker Cochran of Hollywood and young Jake Schaefer of Chicago clash tonight in the final match of the round-robin tournament at the Level Club, with the championship going to the winner.

Schaefer eliminated the last of the four foreign entrants when he defeated Kinrey Matayama 400 to 331 yesterday afternoon. It was the second reverse for the game little Japanese, who won his first three matches in brilliant style. His other defeat was at Cochran's hands in a grueling battle Monday night.

His triumph over Matsuyama elevated Schaefer into a tie with Cochran for the lead. Each has won three matches in four starts.

Lynn Y. M. I. A. To Hold Amateur Show

Lynn Y. M. I. A. will hold an amateur boxing show at Casino Hall, Lynn, on Friday night. Bouts in the following divisions will be contested: 112, 126, 135, 147 and 158 pound novice classes. Entries should be mailed to Dom Serino, 36 South Common st., Lynn.

Sharkey Travels at Top Speed Training

By Jack Sharkey

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 13—The Miami Beach Kennel Club will be my training headquarters from now until I enter the ring with Young Stribling on February 27.

I am now properly acclimated after almost two weeks in Florida and am prepared to get down to the hard training grind which will send me into the ring against the youthful Georgian in perfect physical condition.

What little training I have done so far has been merely for the purpose of keeping me tuned up. I was in good condition when I arrived here as I have been boxing steadily.

From now until the fight I shall travel at top speed every minute. I intend to give everything I have in the fighting line when I clash with Stribling. This means I must be in the best possible shape.

IT is my plan to weigh around 192 pounds when the gong sounds for the Battle of Miami. I have found that this is my best fighting notch. I was at 192 pounds the night in the Yankee Stadium when I knocked out Jim Maloney. For the Christner fight, I scaled 193 pounds.

At the time I battled Harry Wills I only weighed 188 pounds, while I was 190 pounds when I licked George Godfrey. Since the Wills and Godfrey matches I have developed around the chest and shoulders and this accounts for the extra weight.

The ordinary person does not realize how much excess weight he carries around. Neither does the inexperienced boxer who has never been correctly trained.

When I boxed in the navy I always weighed over 200 pounds. In my first main bout as a professional, a little more than five years ago, I scaled 210 pounds. I then thought I was in great condition.

I FOUND that I tired quickly carrying so much poundage, and after I went in for boxing as a profession I began to give training careful attention. I spent several months at Martin Flaherty's training camp at Wamesit, Mass. Flaherty is an old-time featherweight, and knows how to condition a youth for a big test.

I was taught how to train. This included a diet. I was not denied substantial foods, but sweets and fattening foods were barred from the training table. Inside of six weeks I reduced from 210 to 181 pounds. This was the notch I was at when I ended the ring career of Floyd Johnson. Flaherty had managed to take 29 pounds off me.

The idea that a heavyweight must be a 200 pounder is ridiculous. When Jack Dempsey knocked out the gigantic Jess Willard at Toledo he only scaled 187 pounds.

Bob Fitzsimmons, a light heavyweight, always claimed that the bigger they were the harder they fell.

I have always felt that a man weighing 185 pounds has a chance of winning against anybody. I understand that Stribling has built himself up until he now weighs 195 pounds. If the extra weight is hard and evenly distributed over his body, he is fit to campaign as a heavyweight.

One for Fitchburg

Fitchburg, Feb. 13—The Malden City Club basketball team, playing with only four men during the last five minutes, went down to defeat at the hands of Fitchburg Legion, 44 to 40.

Conger, Who Beat Nurmi, Is Third in Rating

What if a fellow does beat Nurmi? Well, what of it? Coach Emil Von Elling of New York University wouldn't put Ray Conger's name first on the international trophy as the most meritorious performer at the Millrose A. A. games last Saturday, even though he did defeat Paavo.

Von Elling contends that the way to judge performances is by the timers' watches. So he will rate them this way when the time for voting comes:

1. Bernard McCafferty for running 600 yards in 1:13 3-5.

2. Phil Edwards for running 600 yards in 1:13 1-5 and then following with a half mile in 1:54.

3. Ray Conger for winning the mile in 4:17 2-5.

FAST CLUB TEAMS IN BATTLE

University Club Squad Gives Trinity Place Team Edge on B. A. A.

Kings and queens of the flashing blades comprise the entertainment deck which is dealt to ice fans tomorrow night at the Boston Garden by the American Legion

Never before have Greater Boston folk had such an opportunity to see the best examples of each type of ice action which has been secured by the Legion officials.

Brilliance of the entire program has failed to dim the importance of the B. A. A.-University Club hockey game, one of the major features of the card.

Miss Vinson, the American figure skating champion, Mrs. Teresa Weld Blanchard and Nat Niles, Baptie and Lamb, all have their cards of followers, but the hockey fans are worked up over the clash between these two amateur clubs.

STARS WAR

Individual duels between the pick of the simon-pure players will be worth the price of battle, since such players as Eck Vaughn, former Eastern star and Capt. Johnny Shaw, ex-Harvard leader, are opposing each other at center ice.

Doug Pickett, long the outstanding ice hockey right winger in local circles, will have a chance to renew acquaintances with Chan Hilliard, ex-star sensation from Melrose, and Ben Nelson, veteran and experienced wing player for the University club, will find himself pitted against Chick Hodler in check.

The two defence pairs are rugged body checkers who may be counted upon to mete plenty of vigorous punishment. University Club with Joe Fitzgerald and Dave Perry will not be backing away from the Hyndsmen forwards.

UNIVERSITY HAS EDGE

In the nets, the more experienced Leonard gives the University club the big edge, but Fogarty can hold his own with the best of the net minders in this vicinity.

The reserves give the University club a distinct advantage, however. Such players as Bill Blaney, Hod Cole, Henry Crosby, Eben Pratt, Bailey, Currier and Clark have a slight edge on the B. A. A. men of the latter has Gyp Lawless, Bob Leary, Manser, Brewer, Smith and Buck.

Considerable interest, too, is shown in the speed skating events. Billy Merritt, long a local favorite, will make a comeback bid in the mile and half-mile events and Walter Thorne, long a titleholder in these two distances also is entered.

They are the favorites to capture the honors, but there is plenty of room among the other competitors and a surprise win by one of the others is not improbable.

OLYMPIC SKATERS IN

The assembly of Olympic skaters is the most imposing of any gathering ever on Boston ice. The appearance of Miss Maribel Vinson, 17-year-old Winchester girl, has drawn a heavy demand for reservations, since she is acknowledged queen of the ice in this country, and a likely contender for world honors before many seasons have passed.

She captured second honors last year at London, at the age of 16 years.

MR. BOSTON By Jack Conway

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 13—Mr. Frank McLean, Press Room, Police Headquarters.

"Dear Frank:

"I don't know how to properly apologize to you, Johnny Noonan, Eddie Drohan, Harry McCormick, Eddie Cox, Jr. The Finn, Frank Hutchins, Tom Grant and the rest of the boys in the press room for knocking you out of a trip to Miami.

"I was all prepared to play golf and go deep sea swimming when I was obliged to hire a flock of taxicabs to keep track of a news story down here.

"Anyhow, Frank, you can tell the gang that I'll take an extra dip in the warm water down here for each of them each day, while I'll stay out in the bright sun just a little bit longer so that the gang will know I feel okay toward them.

"I would say I have been having a heck of a time down here, but that wouldn't sound just right. But it goes just the same.

"I recently wrote to Eddie Hurley and told him how we're picking winners at the dog races. Now we are also playing the horses and we are still happy.

"A FRIEND of Johnny Buckley's dropped around at the hotel and slipped us a tip on Supercede in the fourth race. Jack Sharkey, Johnny Buckley and myself each put $20 on the nose and he raced in at 4 to 1.

"We almost pulled Bill Cunningham in with us, but, as Bill comes from Texas, he likes to know his horses before he bets on them. Personally I find that the less one knows about horse races the better are his chances of winning.

"Frank Marlow, famous New York sportsman and owner of race horses, once told me he had a habit of falling in love with his worst 'goat.' He then backed him and usually lost.

"My new system is to keep away from the track and let the dough ride on the best available information. I handed my tip to a bird here who is worth 10 million. Perhaps he will now leave me one of his spare millions when he cashes in.

"WHEN you meet Supt. Mike Crowley, Frank, tell him I met Babe Ruth at Tampa the other night. The Babe was sunburned and looking in good condition. He wanted to be remembered to the superintendent.

"He also told me to tip John Feeney to practice up on his golf. The Babe says he clicked a 72 the other day at St. Pete. He showed me a telegram from Feeney asking the Bambino to buy him some seats for the Sharkey-Stribling bout.

"I called Dempsey over to where Ruth was sitting, and after swapping a few stories they said Feeney's tickets would be okay. If the boys from the press room come down here, I think they will have to sleep in one of the public parks as the hotels are all jammed with people down for the sunshine, races and fight.

HIRES LAWYER TO SAVE MAX

New York, Feb. 13—John Law, in the person of [illegible] O'Leary, has been retained to take a hand in the [illegible] international mixup of [illegible] Schmeling.

Bert [illegible], who trained Tunney for his [illegible] the German [illegible] who holds the [illegible] on the German [illegible] He will make his [illegible] appearance in the office of [illegible] Arthur Solomon [illegible] and will be joined with [illegible] who, Herr Bulow says, [illegible] and conduct [illegible] battle.

Incidentally, [illegible] will be changes [illegible] American managers have [illegible] of late years, ranging from [illegible] fellow countryman, and a number [illegible] that are expected to provide sprightly reading.

SIGNS FOR MAXEY.

In addition, Barrister O'Leary yesterday laid the foundation for legal action against Joe Jacobs, Charlie Rose and other contenders for the Schmeling management by causing Hans [illegible] to enter with Jess McMahon, promoter of the Stadium Bowl arena, which will open in May. Bulow signed with McMahon in behalf of Schmeling at least a [illegible] Bulow agreed [illegible] Schmeling has any opponent McMahon may name immediately after he [illegible] Fulfills his contract with the Boston Garden.

Bulow is still the property of a holder in Schmeling Manager, Inc. He holds a 40 per cent contract on the boxer, although he cannot collect more than one-third of Schmeling's earnings in the State.

Joe Jacobs has an agreement with the fighter, whereby he receives 7 per cent. Rose holds a 6 per cent interest, but has a partner who owns one-third of his "piece."

M'MAHON GAMBLING

Barrister O'Leary is no stranger to ringside controversies. He represented Mike McTigue, former light heavyweight champion, when Mike demanded and secured his release from the same Jacobs who is now involved in the Schmeling case.

Promoter McMahon is merely taking a gamble on the contract he signed yesterday. If Bulow wins out, McMahon will have the fighter tied up. If he doesn't, McMahon will have a claim anyway, as Bulow is still recognized by the local commission as the legal manager.

Penn Court Team Has Title Nearly Cinched

New York, Feb. 13 (INS)—With a margin of two full games over Dartmouth, its nearest rival, the University of Pennsylvania basketball team had the Eastern intercollegiate championship practically cinched by the most today.

The unbeaten Quakers registered their fifth straight league victory last night in defeating Columbia by a score of 39 to 34.

Capt. Lex Schaaf of the Red and Blue won the game single-handed by scoring 22 points.

Paschal and Meusel Are Yankee Holdouts

New York, Feb. 13 (INS)—Ed Barrow, business manager of the New York Yankees, today announced that two members of the world's champions are holdouts. They are Babe Ruth and Benny Paschal, substitute outfielder, and Bob Meusel, backstop prospect.

Track Too Hard for Reigh Count

Newmarket, Eng., Feb. 13 (AP)—The American race horse Reigh Count is fit and well in his coat for once, but line hauled officers is unable to do much training on the famous heath.

His trainer said today the horse did not look better condition but he could not say what would be his first public appearance until after ground enabled the animal to do the necessary amount of work.

Ed Connolly to Go South With Sox

Secretary Hy Mason reported that the signed contract of Edward Connolly, rookie catcher, who was sent to Pittsfield last season for experience, was received at the Red Sox headquarters in Fenway Park.

Connolly is regarded as a good backstop prospect.

More Trouble for Chicago Blackhawks

Chicago, Feb. 14 (INS)—The ill-fated Chicago Blackhawks of the National Hockey League for day without a place to play their games today found themselves without a manager. Herb Gardiner, who has been guiding the destiny of the Hawks, has been recalled by the Les Canadiens. The Canadiens, who had signed Gardiner to Chicago need him in their own lineup, it was said.

Stasiak To Meet "Sonny" In Memphis

Memphis, Tenn., Feb. 13 (AP)—"Dynamite" Gus Sonnenberg of world heavyweight champion wrestler, will defend his title against the threat of Stanley Stasiak and Pete of Boston at the Auditorium here tonight. Gus will be outweighed about 35 pounds.

Pell Regains Gold Racquet Trophy

Tuxedo, N. Y., Feb. 13 (AP)—After a year in the possession of his defeated partner, Stanley G. Mortimer, Jr., today regained the gold racquet, personal holder of the national handball trophy.

He returned the trophy yesterday by defeating Mortimer in the final of the annual tournament at the Tuxedo Club by scores of 15-4, 12-15, 15-14, 15-3.

Dundee Can Still Step Around a Bit

New York, Feb. 13 (INS)—Johnny Dundee, 55-year-old ring veteran today enjoyed another chuckle at the expense of sports experts and boxing commissioners who would consign him to fistic oblivion. The former champion boxed rings around Lou Moscowitz, rugged New York featherweight, in a ten-round bout here last night.

WALKER MUST POST FORFEIT

Providence, R. I., Feb. 12 (AP)—Mickey Walker, world middleweight champion, must post a $25,000 forfeit to defend his title against Ace Hudkins in Los Vegas, Nev., on July 4, before he will be allowed by the National Boxing Association to meet Tommy Loughran, lightweight champion, in Chicago, Edward C. Foster, chairman of the championship committee of the N. B. A., announced here tonight.

Paul Prehn, president of the N. B. A., tonight asked Mr. Foster if such an arrangement would be satisfactory to the committee as the Walker-Loughran fight, scheduled as the opening show at the New Chicago stadium, appears to be a sell out.

Mr. Foster wired President Prehn that a $25,000 forfeit and an agreement to forfeit the middleweight title to Hudkins in case Walker does not go through with the bout will be acceptable to the committee.

WILLIAMS IS DENIED RECORD

Philadelphia, Feb. 13 (INS)—Although Percy Williams' time of 4 9-10 seconds in the 45-yard dash at the Meadowbrook games here last night was three-tenths of a second faster than the world indoor record, indications were today that Canada's two-time Olympic champion would not be officially credited with a new record. Observers at the starting line agreed in declaring that Williams and the other runners started a full yard in front of the scratch mark.

Williams defeated Karl Wildermouth of Georgetown for the second time within a week.

A new star joined the track constellation when Fred Veit of New York University defeated Ray Conger, conqueror of Paavo Nurmi, and Bernie McCafferty of Holy Cross in the Meadowbrook 600.

Nurmi easily won the 2000-meter race, but the phanom Finn's time was 11 seconds slower than his own world a record.

Fine School Fives in Tilt Today

By DICK McSWEENEY

Fast waning schoolboy basketball season brings some good games today. While not all the headliners are playing, the few contests listed are very attractive.

Hockey teams will have to depend on the weather man today for their contests since most of the suburban schools are using outdoor rinks.

One track meet today will have as participants Lawrence high school and Andover academy.

The Arlington-Newton match tussle will not be neglected by the ardent basket fanciers. The Arlington invaders will be a slight favorite over the home team.

Lexington and Wakefield are making Mystic Valley League fans take notice of their playing. Bill Healey, Wakefield court mentor, knows the game thoroughly and what is more, teaches it successfully. He had a championship five in Louisiana and basketball in Wakefield has profited by his coaching.

Berg and Cadigan are the high scoring forwards who have been playing great ball for Wakefield.

McPhee, center, and Spellman, left guard, are the Lexington stars who will be called upon to do some shining when things get dark for their team.

STONEHAM O. K.

Stoneham and Belmont will oppose each other at Belmont. Adzigian, Marston and Kent have taken well to their basket work at Stoneham and needless to say, Stoneham's record seems to be thriving on the work which this trio has done.

McDermott, Condon and Green, three of a kind when it comes to scoring for Belmont, will wear the home team apparel at Belmont.

Edwards and Edstrom, two youths with but a single thought, that of making baskets, will be in the Worcester Academy lineup when the Assumption College five is encountered. Worcester's basketeers should win.

Other games worth watching are: Tabor Academy at Rivers school, Dummer Academy at Lawrence Academy and Malden at Beverly.

Hockey fans who want some red hot action should cast their eyes over this list of ice clashes: Arlington at Middlesex, Belmont Hill at St. Mark's, Cranston at Pomfret, Quincy at Milton Academy, English at Noble and Greenough, Hebron at Cushing Academy and Browne and Nichols versus Country Day at the Arena.

Arlington is picked to defeat Middlesex, although the Concord private school has a brace of clever puck chasers in Black and Dolittle.

Cranston will be fortunate if it can guard its goal against the attacks of Whiting and Pell, fleet Pomfret wings.

Hebron Academy will try to get by the Cushing Academy obstacle today. Cushing has two speedy wings, Hodgdon and Dimon, who will be relied on to defeat the Hebron ice men.

Laconia, N. H., Feb. 13 (AP)—For the third successive year the New England championship sled dog race had narrowed down to day to a contest between Leonhard Seppala, veteran Alaskan musher, driving a team of full blooded Siberians, and Emil St. Godard, youthful dog driver from Manitoba, with his strong crossbred huskies.

St. Godard, who finished second to Seppala in the last two New England races, was the first to start on the final lap of the three-day race. In order to win he must overcome a lead of more than eighteminutes. Only four of the 16 dogs with which St. Godard started the race were in harness today.

Pioneers Wind Up Annual Ice Series With Eagles

SIXES WAR AT ARENA TONIGHT

By JOHN GILLOOLY

Boston College and Boston University will finish their annual wars with the second and final game of the ice series at the Arena tonight. The Pioneers, having won the first, 4 to 1, are favored to repeat.

But tonight's game promises to be much closer than the first contest and a lot harder. The Eagles don't relish being taken twice by B. U., and with improved play, are due to give their intown rivals a fiery tussle

Both teams go into the fray without their Gibsons. Hoot, captain of B. U and right defense man, is in the business world. Larry, left wing of the B. C. team, has been forced to retire because of ill health.

TOUGH LOSS

Gibson's leadership and all-around defensive and offensive play was an invaluable loss to the Terriers, but Gibson of B. C. was a veteran of three seasons and one of Sonny Foley's most dependable pucksters.

But since the jinx has raised equal havoc in both camps there is no alibi forthcoming, win or lose. The teams are battling on the same basis on which they clashed in the first massacre three weeks ago.

Dick Goddard has been assigned to fill the boots of Captain Gibson of B. U. while Sid Silberger has been appointed to provide the leadership that has been selected by Coach Wayland Vaughan according to the new ruling at B. U.

Perley Payson will be the new man on the B. C. aggregation. Perley is a junior and has played two seasons as a sub. He has had enough experience to make good in his first starting assignment.

RIVALS READY

With the exception of the Gibsons the rival teams are set for a fast day. The first game, in which 3 penalties were meted out, is but a criterion of what can be expected of the teams, steamed up to a higher pitch with this final opportunity of crossing sticks with each other

Bob Elliot will be at left defense for B. U. He has a tough job ahead of him tonight for he'll miss Hoot Gibson at his side and will have to keep the inexperienced Goddard from becoming rattled or playing out of position

Dick Lombard, who started the first B. U. onslaught, Paul Bergholtz and Holmes Whitmore will start on the B. U. forward line. All three are fast, good stick-handlers and can shoot.

Meehan Goes South to Join Al Lassman

New York, Feb. 13—"Chick" Meehan, head football coach at New York University, left for Miami, where he is going to join Al Lassman, Violet captain, who is still recuperating from injuries suffered in the Carnegie Tech game last November. Meehan intends to stay with Lassman three weeks, returning with him in time for the N. Y. U. Letter Club dinner on March 5.

Concerning reports coming from Miami that Lassman still was mentally in an unstable condition, Meehan said that the fullback when he had received pointed to the contrary. Daily letters from Tom Thorp, who is caring for Lassman, and the personal report of Al Higgins, fellow player who only recently returned from the southern resort, led Meehan to believe that Lassman was improving daily, and that he soon would be as well as he ever was.

O'KELLY WILL TRY FOR K. O.

Con O'Kelly, heavyweight champion of Ireland expects to climb toward top of the fistic heap by stopping Ernie Schaaf, the Hub's punching sailor, when they clash in the heavyweight feature at the Boston Garden Friday night

Tom O'Rourke, veteran manager of O'Kelly, sends word that his charge will not be satisfied unless he wins this fight by a knockout

Schaaf however, is making a triumphant march to the top and laughs at O'Kelly's threats. He suffered a bad cut over his eye which covered him with blood from start to finish in his bout with Al Friedman, but an examination of the bruised optic showed only a minor injury. He will be fit on Friday

O'Kelly on account of his two rugged battles with Jimmy Maloney recently probably will enter the ring a favorite at this early, worry about either

Supporting the feature bout the Garden will present the best preliminary card of the season consisting of two eight-round bouts, a six-rounder and four four-round events.

MICHELSON IN SHEPARD RUN

The management of The Shepard Stores of Boston and Providence announced today the official entries in the third annual Shepard Marathon of Al "Whitey" Michelson.

RAGOUT OF LAMB

3½ pounds of breast or shoulder of lamb.
6 slices bacon.
8 small onions.
1 can stuck with cloves.
6 medium-sized potatoes.
1 stalk celery, 3 sprigs parsley, a bay leaf, a sprig of thyme, tied together
1 small carrots.
4 turnips.
4 tbsp. flour.

Wipe the meat with a damp cloth, cut it into inch cubes and dredge with flour. Dice bacon and cook until crisp. Brown onions in bacon drippings, remove them and brown the cubes of lamb. Pour off all the fat except 3 tablespoons, add 4 tbsp. flour and brown, add 1 pint hot water and stir until the gravy boils. Add the meat, the seasonings and the onion stuck with cloves. Cover and simmer for an hour. Then add the turnips, potatoes and carrots, cut into quarters, and the browned onions, and continue cooking for about an hour longer. Remove the bunch of seasonings tied together before serving.

Today's Short Story -:- FLOSSIE STEPS OUT -:- Strategy Saves the Day

FLOSSIE LYNDON [illegible] pa[illegible] tiently for the outer door to slam. Then after a farewell wave from the window she put out the lights and made her way slowly up to her room.

It wasn't that Flossie was tired even though the hour was late. She was depressed—more than usually so tonight. And it was all Logan Bentley's fault, of course.

She looked for a few minutes before the foldaway mirror in her room, apparently scrutinizing her hair, smoothing a tiny fold in the top of her dress. She studied her head critically, noting the [illegible] broad white forehead above wide-set blue eyes, the [illegible] her [illegible] rather [illegible] deeper, fairer eyes, with more than a hint of discontent in them now, the [illegible] nose, not [illegible] its small nose, just the faintest bit retroussé, the lips rouged to a provocative red but small and kissable even without beauty aid.

It wasn't that she was not pretty. And it wasn't that Logan didn't kiss her. He did, and often. It was just that Logan Bentley-Jew was the least outspoken, most cautious male whom she had ever known and, since she felt about him the way she did that fact worried her.

"He's going to be two years next week," she told herself darkly.

"Good Lord, when you tell a man you've been best friends, can't he forget it in two years?"

She would have liked Logan to be [illegible] she told herself except for the fact that—well, she loved him. She knew that and had meant that remark about being friends, but not after she had known him three months. To save for kissing her now and again, he had not presumed upon their friendship.

She sat down on some floor cushions, cross-legged, and pulled out a drawer in her dresser. It was crammed letters, notes, playprograms, ticket-stubs and [illegible] little [illegible] her host of [illegible] friends had given her. [illegible] friends. It was how [illegible] Logan was it. But he didn't seem to appreciate the fact that she had [illegible] to keep a companionship with [illegible] and all the [illegible] and [illegible] Flossie, stopped and started and stared again, as if unable to believe the evidence his eyes had given. It was not until the long, yellow, rakish-looking roadster had passed, with Flossie waving a hand at him and he laughing back to him, that he recovered from the shock and amazement of [illegible] dependable Bill Adams.

Bill Adams, eh? He motioned [illegible] to himself. The taxicab in which he had arrived began to move slowly away. On impulse he called it back, seated himself within it and ordered the driver to "go like blazes" in pursuit of the yellow car already some distance down the ribbon of road.

The roadster was a long [illegible] That was the only reason Logan and his taxicab were able to get within hailing distance. It was shown, that is, until Flossie [illegible] to shake him, especially [illegible] taxicab—and Logan Bentley-Jew was [illegible] anxious for a ride to the window back of the driver. She clung [illegible] her hands delightedly, spoke softly to Bill Adams and the yellow [illegible] sports [illegible] like a winged thing.

The taxicab was left far behind despite the fact that the driver of Logan's fervent plea, had [illegible] her "the gun." Flossie, [illegible] back again, looked disappointed and urged Bill Adams to slow up. The latter, in on the secret now, [illegible] enjoying the joke on Bentley, did so, and the taxicab again began to crawl up.

It came to within a few yards of the roadster. His head turned to look back at his rival. Adams the taxicab and drove off.

Flossie stepped [illegible] on the accelerator—then applied the brakes and swung the wheel around frantically at a horrified scream from Flossie.

It was too late, however. A truck, lumbering up from a side road, side-swiped the roadster, turned it completely around and deposited it both in the ditch alongside the road.

Bill was [illegible] clear out into the road. She was insensible when Flossie, leaped from the taxicab, [illegible] to and lifted her head to his arms.

"Oh, oh Flossie! Poor little Flossie!" he choked. He rained [illegible] her cheeks, her head seemingly almost bereft of its senses by the shock and relief of the accident.

Bill Adams, climbing slowly and painfully out of the wreckage of the car, came up behind Beardsley at a time to see one of Flossie's eyes open slowly and close in a wink. Beardsley, holding her head to him, did not see it.

"Adams, my God, Adams—she's [illegible]"

"She'll not believe it, bones," [illegible] stood into his ear. "I'm absolutely O. K."

To prove it she struggled to her feet but Beardsley, after a moment of joyous wonderment, swept her off them again and into his arms.

Bill Adams spoke up after a while.

"Come on you lovey-doveys," he growled. "The car awaits."

All three of them climbed into the taxicab and drove off.

As he raced, he thought of the prisoner in the death-house, of Mary and her faith in him, of a thousand conflicting, or incongruous thoughts.

Perez had fixed the gas-gauge. Then Perez was the man who was the agent of the gang.

Carmichael looked up startled, as Dick burst into the office. "I've found the man!" Dick shouted hoarsely. "Not a clue this time, but the man!"

"Are you right—are you sure?"

It's Perez. He fixed the gas-gauge of Lawson's plane. We've got to get Perez—and quick!"

"He's on the field! But are you sure! By Jove, this is news, Trent!"

They made a plan hurriedly. Dick would cover the right end of the field, Carmichael the opposite side. Perez must be somewhere in the airport. They must strike swiftly, yet cautiously.

Dick could find no trace of the little man, either in the hangars, or among the isolated groups of mechanics.

Then he saw someone waving . . . Carmichael . . . Carmichael half-dragging, half-pushing someone along. Perez!

Dick ran forward. He dragged him from Carmichael's grip. Almost savagely he shook him. The line chief's eyes rolled. Literally, his teeth rattled.

"You fixed that gas gauge. You fixed it!"

"I don't know what you're talking about."

"You fixed it. I know you did! Come across, or I'll—"

Dick's hands bit into the little man's shoulders. He heard Carmichael's voice, encouraging him, with a kind of violence in it.

"Give him the works, boy! Make him come through with it."

But Perez had only shut his mouth tightly and glared with a determination which there was no doubting. It was as if he defied torture.

Then Dick said desperately: "You'll hang for this, Perez, unless you tell the truth now. You know Old Man Rand had nothing to do with this. Are you going to tell who did—or aren't you?"

"You're mad—you're both mad." Perez muttered. His face was suffused with his blood.

He was game in his own way. Dick could have tortured him, he felt, with no more result. In his own way Perez was victor. And at his wits end, wondering what it was that would make Perez break, he suddenly remembered the line chief's notorious weakness. There was a bare chance.

He dragged Perez roughly to where a waiting plane was being warmed up. In the sudden sound he could not hear the line chief's protests. Carmichael had followed But before Carmichael could question or help him, Dick acted.

He whirled toward the mechanic.

"Yank those blocks!"

With a sudden movement he seized the wiry Perez, swung him off his feet and literally tossed him into the ship. Leaving Carmichael open-mouthed, he vaulted into the pilot's cockpit. Almost before Perez could realize what had happened, the plane was in the air.

Dick grimly climbed to 5000 feet and then throttled his engine. Perez, no longer defiant, but a fearful, cringing figure, turned a sickly face at Dick's shout.

"Fasten your belt," Dick commanded curtly.

Perez' lips were trembling.

"What are you trying to do?" he whimpered. But his fumbling fingers hurriedly secured the belt. Dick gave him no other warning.

Suddenly, savagely, he dived. Instinctively, Perez were flung up t. ts seats. Dick hauled the stick back. A tight loop—no, hold him upside down! Sky and ground swiftly changed places, the engine sputtered—died. The uncanny silence was broken by a scream. Perez, hanging upside down, by his belt, was clutching wildly at the fuselage, after that first glimpse of the ground a mile below.

Dick laughed harshly. The plane died again, then spun dizzily. This was it—make him sick. Now on his back again.

"Will you tell now?" he cried fiercely.

Perez' eyes were glassy, but he shook his head. Dick gritted his teeth. There was one last chance—a whipstall, dreaded even by many daring pilots. He gained speed pointing the nose skyward. Across the ominous quiet as the engine died. The ship stood on its tail trembling like a live thing, then, slid backward. Dick waited, his whole body tense. At last he pulled the stick back.

With a furious, breathtaking plunge, the nose whipped forward from sky to ground. Hurled against his belt, Dick felt the tremendous force that sought to catapult him into space. The blood rushed to his head. For a second all went dark.

Recovering, he carefully eased the ship from that terrific dive and shook the inert form of Perez.

"Had enough?" he rasped. "Will you tell now?"

Crazed by animal fear, a pitiful, tense of a man, some other fear still held Perez captive. He cringed away, still shaking his head mutely.

Infuriated by that obstinate silence, Dick lost restraint.

"You will—damn you! Maybe we'll both go out this time—but you'll tell or I'll get you!"

He jammed the throttle open his face working fiercely. Something in Perez seemed to break. His bloodshot eyes bulged from his face.

"No—No!" he cried, frenziedly. "I'll tell. I'll tell now!"

DRAWN BY Dorothy Flack

DON'T you ever ponder this question when you see the vampiest sort of a vamp who is named Susan? Or the sweetest, most demure little miss in the world called Yvonne? Would think it should be just the reverse, but the names have absolutely no effect. Of course, one can't always live entirely up to a name, for one's disposition may be such that it cannot adapt itself to the flowery name which one carries.

But I do think it's too bad to meet Jane and Susan and Betty Ann and Mary Elizabeth and find them so be—well, bewitching beings who should be named Yvonne and Cleopatra and Francesta and Roberta.

It may be, though, that each is at heart what her name implies. The vamp may secretly be the most domestic creature ever known, and the timid, meek little girl may think herself to be a second Helen of Troy.

Wouldn't it be grand if we could each choose our own name? Some people do—but yet, it seems to me that there's always something wrong in the end.

But, at any rate, it's not the name that makes the girl who bears it. And I'm for all of 'em all the time, every time. Bess their little hearts! For they're all adorable and lovely and beautiful. And after all, I guess by any other name is just as sweet.

you know there was some one living with him?"

"No," replied the Major.

"You did. Now who was that person?"

"I tell you I don't know."

"Very well, Major. I must ask the District Attorney to see you."

The Major grew red, but he was obstinate.

As the Doctor emerged out into the street again, he smiled. There was, he felt sure, something that the Major was hiding—and that something had a vital bearing on the crime.

Over the telephone Marx bade him to come down immediately to his office. Arriving there he found the Inspector hugging a thick manuscript.

"Know what this is?" he greeted the doctor. "Translation of a diary kept by our friend, the butler. Conway found it in his suit-case, and we had it translated—" He paused.

"And solves the Sewell murder?" suggested the doctor.

"Read it," commanded Marx.

June 6, 1923.

This is the diary of Ivan Stanupin. Perhaps when years have passed, I shall want to show this diary, perhaps publish it. Many in Paris, and not a few in Moscow will want to know what I have done, and what she has done.

I have not seen her yet. But I know she has assumed the name of the Countess Nina Karasova and seems to be well supplied with money and suitors. This is not unexpected. Nothing will or can change her.

Today in accordance with my prearranged plan, I have entered the employ of Oliver Sewell. He is not a gentleman and to him servility is the quality most desired in servants.

I first heard of him in Petrograd. He was stopping at the Europa, our finest hotel, and maintained one of the best suites.

Whatever he came to Russia for his plans were soon changed by the revolutions.

She who calls herself Nina Karasova was my fiancee. She was the youngest daughter of a wealthy Ukrainian landlord, a neighbor of mine, and our marriage was to unite two substantial if not noble families.

Nina had come to Petrograd with the outbreak of the war. Her real reason was her desire for that gayety which did not abate even when the whole world was stricken.

This much I knew. I was in love with her, for she was beautiful. She still is.

It was from her I first learned of Sewell. She babbled innocently enough about his gorgeous entertainments, his generosity. She thought he was a true friend of Russia.

Shortly after the Red Terror began, Sewell, who was under suspicion. I had long since discarded my uniform for a workman's blouse, sheepskin coat, baggy trousers and old boots, and I had taken a room with a carpenter's family in the poorer quarters. Nina had been living at the hotel.

I insisted that she come and stay in my apartment, for the hotels were constantly being searched. But she said that Sewell had promised to protect her. Besides, as an American was safe, and his safety would extend to her. I did not know what she was to Sewell.

Being separated from Nina, I had to think up ingenious schemes of seeing her. Dressed as a workingman, I would go to the hotel and get past the guards by insisting I had been assigned to make certain repairs. I carried the carpenter's tools as verification of this story. Thus I would be enabled to get into the hotel, and then I would run up to her room and we would sit and talk.

Strangely enough, I never met Sewell then. Perhaps Nina took care I should never meet him for I was not to see her! I was attracted by the sudden opening of a door. An aristocratic woman with a large fifty, terribly distraught beckoned to me.

"You are Igor Simonovitch?" she asked.

What prompted me to nod, I do not know. In any case, she fumbled with her gown and then produced something wrapped in tissue paper.

"Here it is," she breathed heavily, and thrust the package in my hands. "For God's sake, hurry, for they've gotten wind of it, and they're coming here to search, and if found on me, I will both be dead."

I stared at her.

"Hurry! Hurry!" she panted, and pushed me out.

I paused in the corridor and undid the package. Then I gasped.

You have heard of the Shah diamond, the most famous diamond in the collection of the Romanoffs. I do not exaggerate when I say it was as big as an egg. Not a hen's egg. A duck egg. And at one end of the diamond the Shah, if history is to be trusted, had caused a cut to be made, over which he fitted a ring. The string led back to his throne, so that in his lighter moments he could play with the diamond.

But this may belittle this most magnificent of stones which at that moment seemed to burn my hands. Like a live coal. It bloodied one with its myriads of lights, its pure brilliance. It was so large that it seemed incredible. And yet you will find it coldly and accurately described in any work of reference.

As I stood blinking at it, I heard a commotion at the other end of the corridor. I slipped it hastily in my pocket and then sped down to Nina's room. She was expecting me, and she was alone.

Later I deduced that the aristocratic woman had mistaken me for an expected messenger. She was a lady-in-waiting to the Czarina and got hold of the Shah diamond and determined to smuggle her way out of Russia with it. But some one had discovered her secret. So she sent forth for a messenger to take it from her, while the authorities came to search—presumably she received a friendly warning—and in her desperation she had taken me for the appointed messenger. Later she was executed.

I come back now to my meeting with Nina. Failing to latch hook me what disturbed me, she indicated a desire to have the visit put short.

Nina complained of a headache. Perhaps I bored her. In any event, I was about to go outside when I heard the tramping and voices of soldiers. I listened intently.

The problem before me was to hide the diamond. I turned to Nina. I told her what had happened. I showed her the stone.

Her blue-green eyes glowed with the intensity of the jewel as she held it in her white hands. She uttered a low groan of delight.

"It is for my sake," I cried, "we must hide it before they come."

"Don't be a fool!" she whispered. "Sewell—he is an American. The will never suspect him. He will hide it for us."

An inspiration I thought. Sewell would be the ideal custodian for the jewel.

"He will take it out of the country," she said. "We will meet him at the border, and he will give it back to us. We shall sell it, and —oh, Ivan, we shall be so rich we can buy a large house in Paris, a villa in Cannoe—Oh, Ivan, we can be so happy!"

But at any moment they may be here. Where is Sewell's room?" I asked.

"Don't worry," she advised me and kissed me tenderly. "Just go out into the corridor as if you know nothing at all. Let them search you. Tomorrow come back here, and I shall tell you the news."

I opened the door and stepped out into the corridor.

Immediately I was seized upon by the soldiers and roughly crossquestioned. I explained sullenly I was a carpenter, assigned to repairs in the building. They searched me, and then apparently satisfied, let me go.

Then I made my way out of the hotel. The next day I was told that the American, Sewell, and Nina had left the hotel early that morning.

The realization that I had been duped did not come to me for weeks.

Knowing I had been victimized, I was determined to seek her out, to seek out Sewell, and obtain my just share of that magic stone.

I shall not here describe the difficulties that attended my leaving Russia; the months of hunger I endured until I reached Paris. There I missed them by a week. They had sailed for America.

I worked at everything for a while until I saved enough money to give me the freedom I needed to continue my search.

Then one day I located Nina. She had not changed her name, but she had given herself a title, which is not an uncommon procedure with our Russian emigres. I went to see her.

I found her living in a brownstone house in the East Thirties.

Nina did not recognize me at first. I had aged greatly, and become thin and sallow. When she heard my voice, she grew pale. She thought I had come to do her injury. But I soon set her mind at rest on that point.

"I want my just share of the diamond," I told her. "That is all. I want nothing else from you."

But my dear Ivan, she cried, "I haven't the diamond. I gave it to Sewell. We took it out of Russia, and at the border we were robbed."

For some reason I believed her. "Perhaps Sewell cheated you as you cheated me," I pointed out to her.

But she only smiled.

"He loves me," she said as if this answered my question.

I did not trust Sewell and finally I hit upon this plan of entering his employ. So now I am the butler in this apartment so near the sky. And I am serving an exceedingly strange man.

June 7th.

I am determined to learn from Sewell what he has done with the Shah diamond, for he has it, I know. It is obvious to me that he has cheated Nina.

So I watched Sewell every minute of the day.

June 8th.

Searching through various papers of Sewell's, I came upon an interesting memorandum. It proved beyond any doubt that he lied to Nina when he said he had been robbed of the stone. For the memorandum was a confidential appraisal of the stone, laboriously setting forth its history and value. Further, it was suggested that should the stone be cut for any reason whatsoever, it would only be worth a small fortune, although intact it was worth far more.

This was the conclusive proof I wanted. If he has the stone I shall take it from him if it means his death. Nothing shall stand in my path. I have killed men in war, and have not liked it. I have no desire to harm a human being. But for this stone I would commit all the crimes in the calendar.

June 9th

A Major Preston called on Sewell today.

It seemed that Sewell was paying attention to a niece of his visitor's, and the latter was quite angry.

I heard Sewell say:

"And what do you propose to do about it?"

"Listen." his visitor shouted, "if you go near her, I'll shoot you if it means the chair for me."

The Major held a revolver in his hand. But Sewell promptly put on an attitude of wronged innocence and assured his angry visitor that he was not going but the Major was not supposed. He turned to go, and then suddenly, he said

"Tell me thirty-eight thousand dollars on that last deal. You'd better pay me now, and then we're quits."

"Very well," said Sewell, and sat down to write a check. The Major signed a receipt. Sewell put the receipt in the safe. Then the Major left.

Two days have passed. I have listened in on the telephone. I have watched every move that he has made. I am trying to formulate a plan whereby I can trap him into giving me the necessary information.

But back of my mind, however is the feeling that the mysterious second person in this apartment has a definite bearing on my own quest. This person whose food I prepare but never see—who is he? Where is he?

Today when Sewell left the house, I make a thorough search of each room. But nowhere do I find a trace of the existence of this second person. So I wait until Sewell arrives, and then, under various pretenses, I follow him about the apartment. At night my vigilance is rewarded. I hear what is a man's voice—and it is not Sewell's. I listen intently. But I hear nothing further.

Stunned, I wait a moment. Then I run into the room. But I see nothing. Frantically I search the apartment.

I must have been dreaming.

An hour later I was Sewell. Now I am sure I have been dreaming.

Any yet today my [illegible] said I was coming. But the Major was not supposed. He turned to go, and then suddenly, he said

Again I search, and [illegible] author

Weeks of my search I have [illegible] to me that I am [illegible] both I return I [illegible] room.

I find Sewell seated in a chair, murdered.

The police have come. I am questioned. What can I say?

Today something has [illegible] have the key to [illegible] and to the murder, but [illegible]

"What's this?" demanded the doctor, as he fingered the torn end of a page of manuscript.

"This," said Marx, "is where someone stepped in and tore off the guts of his story."

Marx's face was gloomy.

"And that," he concluded, "is why our friend, the simple butler, was bumped off so suddenly. He knew too much."

How to Have Soft, Pretty White Hands

Many women will undoubtedly be glad to know how to have beautiful, white, soft, pretty hands regardless of the work they have to do. The secret is absolutely a little Ice-Mint into the hands occasionally after, preferably just before retiring at night. In the morning you will be agreeably surprised at the pleasant transformation that has been wrought by even a single application. Ice-Mint is made from a Japanese product that is simply marvelous for its beautifying properties whether used on the hands or face. Regardless of what kind of work a woman does she should have pretty hands as they are really the true marks of refinement. A few applications of Ice-Mint will actually make any woman proud of her hands and skin. It costs little and is sold and recommended by good druggists everywhere.

Dr. Bisch Discusses Insanity in Youth

By L. E. Bisch, M.D., Ph.D.

IN my opinion, the saddest mental disturbance is the one that begin in youth and is called dementia praecox.

About one-third of all the patients in the asylums are suffering from this condition. And once the disease definitely takes hold, many authorities hold that it is absolutely incurable.

The reason I consider this psychosis so especially sad is because, in the first place, it so seldom is recognized early, at any rate in time to render definite and valuable aid. In the second place it attacks young people about the time of puberty and often is a complete surprise to unsuspecting parents.

The boy or girl may be bright in fact, even doing well in school. But on the emotional side certain changes may be noted and these, to summarize them in a word, or two, may be classed as eccentric or peculiar behavior.

These young people are not social. They do not mix well. They tend to be secluded and shut-in. They do not enjoy going to the theater, picture shows, dances, etc., and they take little or no interest in athletics or sports.

Often they are described as "queer." Sometimes they are quietly by themselves, perhaps for an hour or longer, apparently in deep thought.

Yet actually their thinking is anything but profound. It is of the shallowest sort. It deals with superficialities and trivialities.

Later on, as the weeks or months go by, hallucinations and delusions develop. They see strange sights and hear peculiar sounds, all of which have no actual existence. Sometimes they believe their heart has stopped beating or that the blood has dried up. Often they get notions that they are being watched and persecuted that an enemy is "working wires" on them, etc.

Often, also, peculiar mannerisms and awkward attitudes of the body are in evidence. The patient may stand for minutes and minutes in a constrained position without realizing what he is doing.

Marked stubbornness is likewise common. This may amount to what is called "negativism," that is, the patient does exactly the opposite of what he is told.

Other symptoms may be present in the early stages of the disease or develop later on.

The point is, however, to seek expert medical aid at the earliest possible moment, especially such aid as may be given by a specialist in mental disorders, a psychiatrist.

Parents must not, of course, become unduly alarmed when their boy or girl acts strangely, let us say, once or twice. Such unusual behavior is not incompatible with normality.

If, on the other hand, the child's character continues to change it is much better to have him examined and be on the safe side than to wait until the case has advanced far beyond possible help.

Musterole is easy to apply and works right away. It may prevent a cold from turning into "flu" or pneumonia. It does all the good work of grandmother's mustard plaster.

Musterole is recommended by many doctors and nurses. Try Musterole for sore throat, cold on the chest, rheumatism, lumbago, pleurisy, stiff neck, bronchitis, asthma, neuralgia, congestion, pains and aches of the back and joints, sprains, sore muscles, bruises, chilblains, frosted feet—colds of all sorts.

To Mothers: Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole. Jars & Tubes

THE BAER FACTS

WE are still following our standardized policy of giving our readers the best.

Which is why we sent our roofing expert to cover the tweedledunks between Sir Joe Duveen and Audree Hahn.

Andree has a painting worth three million dollars which she wanted to sell to Kansas City just to get Los Angeles jealous.

Kansas City intended to hang the three million dollar art pool-tice in Union Station, where commuters could snip off samples.

Everything was as happy as a hungry hobo swimming from island to island in an archipelago of pancakes with the syrup waves breaking over his ears.

Just when Kansas City was all set to kick in with the three million pills that will cure any financial headache, up blobs Sir Joe with his spats on his shoes and crabs the works.

He says the painting is a Long Island potato. Meaning that it is is the bag.

For the benefit of people who do not understand slang with their cigarette test, we will explain that when anything is in the bag it is equivalent to saying there is a sleeper in the rumble seat.

Which expression is the true Einstein formula for the relativity of palookas.

The painting is scheduled in the Almanac de Goofa as "La Belle Ferroniere."

It is catalogued as an original Leonarda Da Vinci, an Italian artist whose work is so perfect that a connoisseur has a difficult time correcting it.

Sir Joe, an English varnish and putty expert, says the Belle is a ringer If Da Vinci painted it, he must have done the job during a moratorium.

We have seen Da Vinci's "Mooning Lizzie" in the Louvre. "Mooning Lizzie" is famous for her tight-lipped smile, which may be due to sarcasm or to bad teeth.

But an old master in Paris may be only a poster for Sparks Brothers' Circus in the Middle West. Most of the valuable painting in Kansas City and New York is done by the hour.

Our national affection and romantic interest in the masterpieces of ancient times are indicated by the fact that Jersey City fines you $25 for a 1928 license plate.

FADS AND FASHIONS

There's nothing new under the sun, but we've racked our brains to remember if we had ever seen purses made of canvas. Fine white canvas is said to be quite the smart resort material for purses, and it has a very high hat appearance with its ornamental monograms and handles of gold. Funny, we never thought of it before.

Getting war-like the evening mode adopts red as its significant shade for the mid-season. Every shade of red is shown in materials such as moire, taffeta, faille, crepe romain, chiffon and stiff and artificial velvets. Deep oval backs for evening frocks are especially good, and very much so if they are at all decorative.

A bit of color, all of the so-called off white shades. Nevertheless they are important, as far as suiting the individual complexion is concerned. These "white" frocks are very smart when made up alovelean in a stiff fabric, such as silk gabardine. A gay cardigan is an indispensable accessory.

ALWAYS DEAD TIRED?

How sad! Sallow complexion, coated tongue, poor appetite, bad breath, pimply skin and always tired. What's wrong? You are poisoned. The bowels are clogged and liver inactive. Take this famous prescription used constantly in place of calomel by men and women for 20 years—Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. They are harmless yet very effective. A compound of vegetable ingredients and olive oil. They act easily upon the bowels, free the system of poison caused by faulty elimination and tone up liver.

Be beautiful. Have rosy cheeks, clear eyes and youthful energy that make a success of life. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, nightly, know them by their olive color. 15c, 30c and 60c.

Why so distant?

Why is this handsome young man saying "Good-bye" so distantly to his sweetheart's finger-tips?

Because she has a very bad cold, and he is sensible. Had she been equally sensible, she would have taken GROVE'S BROMO QUININE promptly at the first warning signal. Many millions of people all over the world have proved its power. A sneeze, a headache, a stopped-up feeling . . . and they immediately take care of themselves with this famous remedy.

Thus they frequently side-step the cold entirely. Or throw it off quickly. Besides fortifying the system against grip and influenza. When you need such results, make sure of getting the genuine by emphasizing GROVE'S, in asking for GROVE'S BROMO QUININE. Price 30c.

DINE AND DANCE

Valentine Party at Mah Jong Thursday

Mah Jong Restaurant and night club will hold a big Valentine party Thursday night. Winton D. Bee, manager has made preparations for a record crowd. The vodvil show this week is one of the best in town; it includes Boston's favorite dance team in a series of stru dances; Leo Monte in Russian dances, Scotty Holmes and his Mah Jong society orchestra have a large stock of valentines on hand for Thursday night.

Scotty Holmes

Broadway Stars at Silver Slipper

The Silver Slipper, 111 Arlington st., favorite after-theater rendezvous, has an excellent program of entertainers direct from Broadway night clubs, appearing at both the dinner and supper shows. Hal Fimberg, master of ceremonies, a well known Boston boy, and his partner, Paul de Frank, do several novelty numbers. By popular request, Mlle. Dafora is introducing several dance numbers she recently saw in Russia.

Lenten Features at Popular Restaurant

Throughout the Lenten season the Symphony restaurant, 255 Huntington ave., announces a special planked fish dinner for one dollar from 5:30 o'clock to 8 o'clock, to be served every Wednesday night beginning today. Other sea food specials will be on the menu for the noon luncheon. A big vodvil program is being staged all week, and on Thursday night this will be augmented by 10 other feature acts. Friday night is collegiate night. Gold prizes will be given. Perley Stevens and his Velvet Tone Recording orchestra continues the show with dance music.

Montmarte Night at Embassy Club

The Embassy, Back Bay supper club, is offering another innovation in its weekly schedule of special evening entertainment.

Tonight, and every Wednesday night throughout the season, will be known as "Montmarte Night" at the Embassy. On this occasion, imported French specialties will be offered each lady patron. They are the vogue where souvenirs are used in the famous clubs of Europe.

The musical organization will be augmented by the Zalamor's, European novelty dancers.

Meat Dealers of Hub Hold Meeting

The Retail Meat Dealers' Association held its monthly meeting at the Salada Tea Building where executives of the Salada Tea Company acted as hosts, and entertained their guests at an informal supper in the Salada cafeteria.

The meeting was largely attended, and the spirit of co-operation was very noticeable among the various members.

Spanish Program at Yoeng's Kenmore

Yoeng's Kenmore restaurant at Kenmore station is featuring a week in Spain all this week, and a top notch show with pretty dancing senoritas, beautiful costumes amid colorful scenery. Manager Harry King and his assistants may be seen in the latest Spanish attire. Billy Stone will continue to keep the audiences in a happy mood as master of ceremonies. Some of the popular song hits of Madrid are played by Henry Davis and his popular orchestra.

Goodwin Points to Savings Under Bill

The vast sum of $2,700,000 was paid out by Massachusetts motorists last year for the printing, writing, transfering, filing and otherwise handling their compulsory insurance policies, according to Frank A. Goodwin, former State registrar of motor vehicles.

"I have been informed by a reliable insurance company official that it cost $3 to print, write, transfer, file and otherwise handle every compulsory insurance policy last year," said Goodwin. "As more than 900,000 such policies were written in Massachusetts last year this means a total of $2,700,000 came out of car owners' pockets for this one item.

WIPES OUT CHARGE

"Under the bill filed by me and the Boston Evening American to create a State Fund and provide compulsory insurance at cost, this item would be absolutely eliminated. Under our bill, when the car owner goes to the Registry of Motor Vehicles and receives his certificate of registration he pays his insurance at the same time. Our bill makes the registration certificate an insurance policy. That wipes out this high charge of $3 for each policy which is forced on to every motorist. Would you prefer the fancy insurance policies to the $2,700,000 motorists?

"This is only a small portion of what Bay State car owners would save every year if our bill becomes law. I claim the total saving would be at least $7,500,000 yearly.

SAVINGS POINTED OUT

"When you see we have saved $5,700,000 on just two items alone we will save about $6,000,000 annually. In the first place, let us take the commissions and other acquisition charges to get the business which the state tells the car owner he must do anyway. This year there will be more than $20,000,000 taken from the car owners and the commissions paid out by the 67 companies competing with one another will be more than $3,000,000.

"Now you see we have saved $5,700,000 on just two items alone on commissions and acquisition charges and for making out and handling the policies.

"Let me mention one more item. In the report made by the companies to the insurance commissioner on the business done in Massachusetts for 1927 under the compulsory act they admitted, under oath, that it cost $1,800,000 to investigate personal injury cases. Under our bill this investigation will be made by the registry of motor vehicles which already has a force which is supposed to investigate all accidents in the interest of safety but has not been able to because it has been undermanned.

The bill provides for an addition to this force and the registry department will investigate for both the registry department and the State Fund and the cost be equally divided.

"On a conservative estimate $400,000 will be charged up to the insurance fund and you see we here have another saving of $1,400,000."

MANY PRAISE BILL

Boston American readers write interestingly of their experiences under the present compulsory insurance law and in praise of the Goodwin-American bill, which, they believe, will eliminate the bad features of the one now in operation.

A. R. Estabrook of 19 Central st., Hudson, wrote: "It doesn't take a college professor to reach the conclusion that the Goodwin-American bill will be of great benefit to the people of Massachusetts. I hope this bill goes over with a bang."

Flora M. Hughes of 16 Grandview ave., Watertown, wrote, "Please find signed petition. Keep up the good work. It will be a blessing to the people of this State if this bill becomes law."

John A. Sackett of South Easton, wrote, "Enclosed you will find petition I signed. I hope we will be successful in overthrowing the present plan of compulsory automobile insurance. It is one of the biggest swindles ever put over in the State of Massachusetts. A State Fund is the only way that justice may be done to all owners of automobiles. I wish to thank Goodwin and the Boston American for their work in trying to overthrow the present law."

Readers are invited to write to this newspaper, giving their views of the present law and their opinion of the Goodwin-American bill. Is your compulsory insurance cost too high? Do you believe in the present zoning system of charging? Write now, telling of your experience and opinion.

'Glorifying American Girl' to Be Filmed

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Copyright, 1929, by Universal Service.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 13—"Glorifying the American Girl" and "An American Tragedy" have become Paramount's favorite rumors. One could almost use the word perennial, each has been discussed so often as a coming attraction.

But now finally "Glorifying the American Girl" is to be filmed in an all-talkie with Millarde Webb in charge of the direction end. Webb is in New York where he just finished "Gentlemen of the Press" and apparently he did a sat isfactory job for he is staying on to perpetuate a la talkies this tale of a Ziegfeld Follies beauty.

I shouldn't be surprised if some arrangements were made to incorporate Ziegfeld numbers—for its a Ziegfeld idea—the title, I mean. What luck that Paramount and Ziegfeld did not agree on a story until now for without the talkies I reckon the picture would be another of those things with songs, dances, etcetera, it stands no chance of becoming competition to "The Follies" and other musical comedies.

ONE of the amazing features about Hollywood is the advance gossip that precedes certain pictures. Long, long before some of these specials are released we hear they are pretty good, pretty bad or just fair to middling. Some one has started some effective gossip on the "Desert Song" and now it is rumored around Hollywood that John Boles is going to be "The Desert Song" while Bessie Love was to "Broadway Melody."

At any rate Carl Laemmle Jr., took that gossip seriously and has now cast Boles in "The Minstrel Man," which is to have songs, dances and other accoutrements of synchronized movies. Laura La Plante, who made her first appearance in a talkie in "Show Boat," plays the lead and Harry Pollard will direct.

THE first of the foreigners to leave the film capitol is Conrad Veidt. Veidt is leaving for Germany within a few days to s" productions in Europe. He writes a note to say "au revoir" and to say that his productions will be made in Germany and England. I wonder if the talkies did this for he is one of the really good actors and one that should not suffer from microphone difficulties for he speaks English easily.

Yet the foreigner seems to have less chance on the screen than he did before voice became so important. It's so hard to see Emil Jannings, another of our foreigners join the film colony abroad, for while the talkies last the producers are not going to take a chance on an accent.

THERE is something doing, I tell you. Joseph Kennedy, on gum shoes, crept into town. J. J. Murdock, whose millions are back of Pathe and Radio Pictures, did the same stealth act, and arrived in town a couple of days ago, and M Cassy, Murdock's right-hand man is also here. I don't know what it means. I haven't quite figured out, but Radio Pictures are now riding on the crest of the wave, and we may look to see some sort of amalgamation or some sort of declaration any day now.

These amalgamations and mergers are making steep impossible for the ambitious film reporters. We are so afraid while we are keeping a date with Morpheus of dance music.

some one of the film companies will decide to merge that we are afraid to close our eyes. Being beaten on a story like that would just be too bad.

Many Features at Palais D'Or Tonight

Tonight is theatrical night at the Palais D'or restaurant, 281 Huntington ave., and many feature attractions are planned. Jimmie Gallagher and Miss Alyse Seimans, mistress of ceremonies, will appear in a new Russian dance number. Miss Seimans has created quite a hit at this resort since she introduced some of the entertainment which made her famous at Broadway night clubs. Jimmie and his band will give a lengthy program

ALUMNI HONOR WESTINGHOUSE CHIEF

H. P. DAVIS, vice-president of the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company and chairman of the Board of Directors of the National Broadcasting Company, will give the principal address at the Worcester Tech Radio Dinner this evening at the Hotel Kimball in Springfield. Other distinguished members of the engineering profession are also to speak during the hour's program which will be broadcast at 7:30 p.m. through WBZ. WEZA Besides the after-dinner speeches there will be music by an orchestra and the Glee Club from Worcester Polytechnic Institute. These features will be carried to radio listeners over the air.

FLUTE SOLOIST

ONE OF the high spots of the next La Touraine Coffee Concert broadcast at 7:30 by WEEI and a network of Yankee Broadcasting Company stations, will be a rendition of Chaminade's "Concerto" with flute solo part by Ellis MacDiarmid. The La Touraine Coffee Concert Orchestra, with Nathaniel Shilkret conducting, and the La Touraine Coffee Male Trio will be heard in a program of popular and semi-popular selections.

HIGHLANDERS

WATER MUSIC originated by negro convict labor gangs, will be sung by Leslie Frick, contralto, as guest soloist with the Jeddo Highlanders through WBZ tonight. The program, broadcast at 7:00 o'clock also features a banjo solo by Stefano di Stefano, "Monastery Bells," during which he will be accompanied by the orchestra under Hugo Mariani.

VIOLINIST IN MOBILOIL PROGRAM

LEON TREBASZ, violinist, brings a whirl of vivid color to the program by the Mobiloil Orchestra, broadcast through WBZ and the NBC System at 9:00 o'clock. His "Gypsy Airs," by Sarasate, will be played by Trebasz, accompanied by the orchestra under Maurice DePack. Selections from Victor Herbert's operetta, "Rose of Algeria," "Romance," by Granados, and several popular numbers are also on the program.

MINUTE MEN

ANN LANG, contralto, will give three solos in the program of the Thirty Minute Men at 8:30, broadcast over Columbia. She will give interpretations of "Ave Maria" by Bad," "I'm Writing You This Little Melody" and "In the Arms of Love."

SUNKIST PROGRAM

FEATURING a native string orchestra under the direction of Harry Reser, vocal arrangements of old Spanish folk songs will be heard as sung by a mixed quartet composed of Marjorie Horton, Penita Hemmingsen, Judson House and Frank Croxton in tonight's Sunkist program on WEEI at 8. The complete program follows:

Sunkist Orchestra
Sorella ..... Gallini
In Old Madrid ..... Trotere
Golden Gate ..... Jolson
La Violetera ..... Padilla
Carmela Solo, Penita Hemmingsen
La Estrella (Orange Dance) ..... Langey
Chalita ..... Schertsinger
Quartet
Barcelona ..... Kaun
Orchestra
Jacquita ..... Fassner
Zacatecas ..... Odell
Orchestra

DAGUERREOTYPES

SAD SONGS of the past will be the offering of Gladys Rice over Columbia at 9 o'clock. The tragic note will be struck with that painful melody "The Wedding Bells Shall Not Ring Out," and such choice old songs as "A Flower from My Angel Mother's Grave," and "Massa's in de Cold, Cold Ground."

OPERETTA STAR

DONALD BRIAN will be the La Palina artist to be heard over Columbia at 9:30.

KOLSTER RADIO HOUR

MUSIC of many nations will be represented in the Kolster Radio Hour broadcast over the Columbia System at 10 o'clock.

The complete program:

Intermezzo in "L'Arlesienne" ..... Mascagni
Largheetto (for String Quartet) ..... Bandel
The Flight of the Bumble Bee ..... Rimsky-Korsakoff
Two Arabesques ..... McDowell
Scotch Poem ..... Schuett
The Eri King ..... Brahms
Dawn Awakes ..... Brahms

BARBER SHOP TRIO

THE INGRAM SHAVERS, alternating with the Ipana Troubadours, will be heard at 9 o'clock on WEEI. Their Barber Shop Trio will be heard in the choruses of "Everybody Loves You," "Marie," and "Good Little, Bad Little You," as well as on the Shavers' signature song, "Pack Up Your Troubles in Your Old Kit Bag." "Sunrise," a tango reminiscent of Irene and Vernon Castle, will be presented in a special arrangement by the Ingram ensemble.

GOLD STRAND RETURNS

THE GOLD STRAND Orchestra, familiar to radio listeners through previous broadcasts over the NBC System, inaugurates a new series to be broadcast over a coast-to-coast hook-up of the NBC System, beginning WEEI, tonight, from 10:30 to 11:00 o'clock. For their first broadcast Gustave Heenrichs has a program of popular and semi-classic airs in which the Gold Strand Orchestra is assisted by Peter Dixon as tenor soloist, and the two-piano team of Pollack and Mering.

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN

LARGEST EVENING
CIRCULATION IN NEW ENGLAND

Fellows of Fifty

They DO Receive a Second Glance in This Day and Age

Jeremiah Fives, 58, and an ash-man, told Justice Druhan in New York City the other day:

"I have long passed the age when any woman would give me a second glance!"

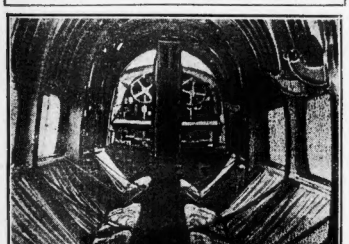
Mr. Fives is too modest. Beside him a violet is a sunflower. What, pray, is the age at which men cease to receive second glances from women? Mr. Fives indicates that at 50, or perhaps younger, men no longer get second glances. He is wrong, a thousand times wrong.

Let him look at the records of the Marriage Bureau. Let him ease himself into evening dress and drop into a night club. Let him attend an opening performance at a theater. He will find that the fellows of 50 and more constitute the life of the party, the focus of all feminine eyes.

Mr. Fives reveals that he is making $12,000 at least in the ash business. Let that be bruited about and he soon will find himself cross-eyed trying to watch all the second, third, fourth, fifth and sixth glances he receives!

A Ship That Saved Many

Some Day You Will Travel in Seats Like These



INTERIOR OF A BRITISH AIRSHIP THAT RESCUED WOMEN AND CHILDREN

This interesting picture showing the arrangement of seats for soldiers, wounded men or ordinary commercial travelers, in the interior of a big British flying machine, will interest everybody.

Ahead you see two steering wheels, the "dual control" of a big machine. There are seats for two pilots. If one were shot down, or anything else happened to him, the other could immediately take charge of the ship.

The seats in the rear are arranged so that they can be let down and made into sleeping cots, very convenient for carrying wounded men.

Several ships like this were made by the British, especially to carry troops, twenty-three men besides the pilot to each ship, for quick expeditions to suppress riot or insurrection.

This type of ship was used recently most successfully in the Afghanistan uprising against King Amanullah. The rebels had driven the king and his ministers into the fort at Kabul, and in that fort there were a number of British women and children, and also some Indian women.

The British Government sent planes of this type through the air from India to Kabul. The women and children were taken on board and carried to safety.

The Afghan King Amanullah was also carried away in one of the planes, with his wife, whose wearing of European clothes, with no veil to cover her face, aroused the rage of the barbarous Afghans.

Before many years have passed, riding in airplanes like this will be an occurrence as common as riding in an automobile. There will be in the air flocks of airplanes almost as numerous as flocks of carrier pigeons that disappeared long ago.

Men will leave the Atlantic seaboard in the morning, to dine in Paris or Berlin the evening of the same day.

They will go from Chicago to Florida or to Southern or Northern California, leaving after breakfast, arriving in time for a swim before luncheon.

Whoever doubts this has little confidence in the inventive and building genius of the human race. Heaven knows that genius has sufficiently demonstrated its power, from the airplane to the submarine, and from the giant locomotive to the swift automobile.

What Would He Say?

Frederick Would Not Be So Proud, Perhaps

Germany applauds and criticizes the former Kaiser's book entitled "My Ancestors."

What kind of a book would Frederick the Great write if he could come back and write "My Descendants."

Imagine Frederick the Great, with the army, navy, deadly weapons and scientific resources possessed by Germany in 1914. What he would have done, and how.

Thrift Decalogue

Ten commandments for financial independence are offered by the National Thrift Committee. They are worth studying:

1—Work and earn. 2—Make a budget. 3—Record expenditures. 4—Have a bank account. 5—Carry life insurance. 6—Own your own home. 7—Make a will. 8—Invest in safe securities. 9—Pay bills promptly. 10—Share with others.

Adolph Lewisohn submits the rules. If they seem difficult, concentrate on the first, then take the rest in order, mastering each before attempting the others. The series represents a course in progressive prosperity.

What's Wrong With This Picture? -:- By Hatlo

No Crime in Nature

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

"Do you believe there is any intelligence behind nature? If so, then why collisions among suns and planets and awful catastrophes in the heavens?—C. B. Wilcox."

COLLISIONS and catastrophes are not inconsistent with intelligence. All depends upon the point of view and the purpose. We are mere spectators of what goes on in the universe, and as such are insufficiently informed concerning the raison d'etre of catastrophes.

A catastrophe means, radically, a "turning down," i. e., the end of a particular state or condition. It is accompanied by the destruction of something as a consequence of which something else, another state or condition, comes on. In nature it is a convulsive change, and may be just as legitimate a part of the development of an intelligent plan as any less violent step toward a goal of progress.

The history of geology is full of catastrophic events. If sometimes what we call a calamity, i. e., an occurrence distressing to human beings, results from such an event, as, for instance, an earthquake or an avalanche, still it would be an immense assumption on our part to accuse the presiding intelligence of the universe of violating a law of its own being. We cannot define or limit such a law. We cannot call an earthquake "murder committed by divine intelligence," for we are preliminarily aware that nature is so made and so ordered that we must keep out of her way when a catastrophe impends.

We have a higher intelligence than any other inhabitants of the earth, and as far as that takes us we are able to avoid being caught in the maze of cosmical wheels. But, like every other created thing, we are subject to the fundamental action of the universe, which admits no exemption from the consequences. Nature is absolutely impersonal.

As far as our knowledge goes, nothing that occurs in nature, whether on the earth or among the stars, is indictable in the sense of a crime. Calamities that we bring upon ourselves, knowing the danger of risk, are excluded by our contributory negligence. Disasters, like volcanic eruptions, or earthquakes or floods, or invasions of disease, are not due to moral faults of the universal intelligence, but they resemble accidental killings, in which no crime can be alleged.

We fight stoutly for freedom of thought and of will. This freedom is given to us; then can we turn about and load upon divine intelligence the faults of our own personal disposition? Can we accuse it, for example, of causing the World War and its horrors, when we were free to keep peace and cultivate brotherly kindness if we would? Men chose advantage rather than justice, and so turned the world as red as Mars with its own blood.

No, no, we can not inculpate an intelligence which infinitely exceeds ours, which has many universes to govern, by charging it with faults visible only to our limited power of comprehension. Deistic anthropomorphism, that is imagining God as made on the plan of man, is bad enough when it only concerns the question of our immediate relations to him, but it becomes absolute imbecility when it undertakes to construct and run the universe, or universes, according to human notions.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

MY father, Alex Robinson, died when he was still a young man.

He died after years of bitter hard work and great suffering. But in spite of that labor and suffering he never forgot joy.

He believed in joy, though he had so little of it for himself.

He rejoiced when he saw joy in other lives—which is a very rare thing.

IT IS SO EASY TO WEEP WITH THOSE WHO WEEP, BUT SO EXTREMELY HARD TO LAUGH WITH THOSE WHO LAUGH.

But my father laughed when laughter came to others. And often he said, "DO NOT TAKE HIS SONG FROM ANYONE!" I did not understand that saying when I was a child. But now, I think, I understand it.

Everyone has a song.

Something that makes music in the heart.

It may be something at which you or I would sniff our noses in scorn—some foolish, common pleasure.

It may be something which you or I would brand as superstition.

It may be something which you or I would call "nutty."

But to that particular spirit it brings happiness and puts music into this dreary business of living.

Everyone has a song——

Happiness isn't merely an accident.

Happiness is necessary.

We are reborn every time we are happy.

We grow when our spirits laugh.

We slough off old dead tissues and strike new roots into life—

Joy is food——

Joy is a new chance—

Everyone MUST have a song in his spirit or he perishes—

Just as everyone MUST have blood in his veins or he dies—

DO NOT TAKE HIS SONG FROM ANYONE.

Do not, by your cynicism or doubt rob anyone of his faith—Do not, through your superior culture spoil the simple pleasure of some commoner soul.

Do not take the song from anyone, for if you do you take the essential rhythm ... his life.

WORDS OF THE WISE MEN

The idol of today pushes the hero of yesterday out of our recollection, and will, in turn, be supplanted by his successor of tomorrow —Irving.

The chief fault of man is that he has so many small ones. —Paul.

The foolish and vulgar are always accustomed to value equally the good and the bad. —Yriarte.

Zeno first started that doctrine, that bravery is the best defense against a knave. —Plutarch.

He who does not think too much of himself is much more esteemed than he imagines. —Goethe.

The envious pine at others' success: no greater punishment was devised by Sicilian tyrants. —Horace.

And it is a common saying that it is first better to catch the stag, and afterwards, when he has been caught, to skin him. —Brackton.

The tallest and smallest among us are alike, diminutive and pitifully base, it is a meanness to calculate the difference —Thackeray.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELIS

IN the Summer, roses thoughts of love impart, and each bud discloses something of my heart. But when Summer passes, though her glory wanes with the fading grasses, changeless, love remains Garden ways are lonely, north wind roars and whines; now my song is only of the steadfast pines. Naught to them the going of earth's sun and song, cruel north wind blowing, cheerless nights and long. Though the snowflakes, drifted, on their branches cling, yet their boughs are lifted, verdant as in Spring. Pines in Winter weather, lift green banners still, and love blossoms whether life be kind or chill.

Day by Day Abroad

By O. O. McINTYRE

PARIS, Feb. 13—There is an intimate charm about the Paris circus the American circus, on account of its stupendous magnitude, can never achieve. The circus here is a tabloid affair and is held indoors. The program rarely varies. Paris, the Freudians would say, is "circus-conscious." There are open the year around.

There is only one ring and the seats mount up around it closely. One does not have to try to watch a dozen things at once. A single acrobat swings in a pool of light. Three horses circle the ring, pawing and strutting a dignified pavanne. One lumbering elephant performs on a wooden tub.

Those with ringside seats are free to dodge the swish of an unexpected tail or the swing of a trunk. The clown is still an idol here. His antics fit in perfectly with the French simplicity of humor. As long as I remember, The Fratellinis have been featured at the Cirque d'Hiver.

They are today the most famous clowns in the world. The routine of their act never changes, yet never grows stale, for it is in their extemporaneous bits at each performance they excel. They are the fourth generation of clowns, subtle, slightly vulgar, but you always laugh heartily. They are reminded of Bluch.

Once in a while The Fratellinis leave Paris for a few appearances in the provinces, but not for long. Huge offers have been made to bring them to America. The old Hippodrome used to raise the sum every season, but they refused. They not only feared the ocean, but would not be denied their table wine.

Paris pays its clowns little. The Fratellinis, who are incidentally Italians, might have been rich in money, but they are only rich in the affection of the people. France leaves to America the task of reading cosmic symbols into the buffoonery of their mimes. There is no "Laugh, Clown, Laugh" theme. Clowns are happy.

It is during the intermission the Parisian circus exerts its individualistic charm. The crowds move as one to the animal quarters and to the entrance of the dressing rooms. The Fratellinis come out in costumes and chat with customers. Children feed the animals. The ring master opens a bottle of wine. The circus becomes, indeed, a big family.

PARIS in winter is pitch dark at 4:30 o'clock in the afternoon. The lights come on at 4. There is a shower almost every day, but it never snows. The nearest to the old-fashioned white winter we know is a slight frost. On this mid-winter morning there are many on the streets without overcoats. But none without umbrellas.

NO matter how rainy or chilly the day, cafes never fail to set out their sidewalk marble-topped tables and wicker chairs. It is as customary as opening the shutters and raising the blinds. In front of the Cafe de la Paix today, for instance, there were tables for perhaps 500, but by actual count only nine customers. Every bareheaded, white-aproned waiter was at his post, swaying in the sharp wind and looking as though the sadness had begun.

RUE ROYALE is, to my notion, one of the most engaging streets in Paris, with its short, majestic wide sweep from the Madeleine to the Place de la Concorde. It boasts two famous restaurants in Maxim's and Larue. Madame Pompadour persuaded the royal sinner Louis XV to erect the brooding Madeleine at the head of Rue Royale. Inside the historic church there is a funeral service almost every hour, and on the sidewalk outside is always a group of black-garbed professional mourners ready to swing off behind the hearse and march to the cemetery for a few francs per march. And at night under a thin straw of stars the Madeleine, gleaming white in its sepulchral calm, is the most breath-taking view in Paris.

NEAR the Madeleine today I tried to engage a little fiacre. The cocher looked up from his Paris Midi and shook his head. Turning cute, I exclaimed: "Bon pourboire!" —which meant at least a dime tip. He clucked to his nag, moved on about ten feet and continued reading. It was typical of a phase of French behaviorism that stumps us all. One minute they want to kiss you and the next kill you.

THE Boeuf a la Mode is a restaurant in the Rue Valois loved by Napoleon. Also Desmoulins and Danton. It occupies an old mansion built by Cardinal Richelieu and across the street from the Palais Royal where Richelieu lived. A few years ago it was known only to the French. Today it is thoroughly Americanized. So much so the hat check boy looked at my franc tip and with thinly disguised mockery said: "Good night, Mr. Rockefeller."

Meditations of a Wife

By HELEN HOWLAND.

THE hardest task of the modern man's life is to keep up with the modern woman. She seems to be trying everything—once!

* * *

Just as he gets used to her in one role, presto! she does a lightning-change! And he has to get acquainted with her all over again It's maddening!

All of which is a gentle way of breaking the glad news that GIRLS HAVE GONE FEMININE! It's swank to be "a perfect lady!"

* * *

Bouffant evening frocks and long hair are only superficial symptoms. The smart girl of the moment is OH, so proper! Grandmamma herself, could not have been any more reserved, any shyer, any more punctilious.

Hard-boiled flappers are as distinctly declasse as vamps. And now (Don't faint!) good breeding is actually "good form" again.

Well, what are you boys going to do about it? You have been sighing and moaning for the return of the sweet, old-fashioned girl. And now you've got your wish. She's here with a vengeance

* * *

She has wiped most of the rouge off her cheeks, discarded the mascara around her eyes, and is even going light with the lipstick. Her manners are as irreproachable as though she spent her mornings reading Emily Post and her afternoons with Queen Mary of England.

Even her walking is positively EFE-fined. And she can refuse a cocktail with an air of delicate feminine virtue that is almost a reproach.

Petting is a "cheap and disgusting practice," and against her code; and she would as soon think of permitting kissing as of embracing as she would of washing the dishes or taking a bath in the drawing room.

* * *

All of this is something of a shock to the younger men, who were just beginning to get used to the hard-boiled play girl, and to enjoy finding life one glorious cafeteria, where they helped themselves and managed to skip the bill collector. They are a little dazed.

But the sad truth is that styles in women have changed. Women have found that the "wild woman" role didn't PAY, and have discarded it. They have discovered that men don't put in a wholesale order for kisses that are given away as free samples, and that fifty-fifty love led but to spinsterhood—or the divorce court. They have learned that woman's winning card is FEMININITY—and now they are bulling the market.

It is only the girl who is not "in the know" who is still playing the wild woman. All the rest are "perfect ladies." It's swank to be a "lady."
